FAR EAST PEACE
MOVEMENTS HIT A
DANGEROUS SNAG*Japanese Leaders Declare
Evacuation of Chinese
Army Too Slow*NIPPONESE SEND A SECOND WARNING*Japanese Bluejackets Are Reported Kidnaped
Near Hongkew

PEIPING, July 24.—Japanese army leaders tonight declared the north China situation, which for two weeks has kept China and Japan on the verge of war, again had become ominous because Chinese troops were not leaving this area rapidly enough.

They charged that units the Chinese had undertaken to withdraw actually were digging in for resistance. Peaceful settlement of the crisis, which yesterday appeared in process of being carried out, had struck a dangerous snag.

Twice in the past 24 hours, said Domei, the Japanese news agency, the Japanese command had warned Chinese leaders they must speed up withdrawal of the "anti-Japanese" 25th division.

The attitude of north China leaders toward Japan, hitherto conciliatory, had stiffened, the Japanese declared, and this coincided with the arrival here of General Hsiung Ping, vice-chief of the Chinese general staff.

General Hsiung came by airplane from Nanking on orders from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. Japanese said they believed he had induced General Sung Cheh-Yuan, chairman of the Hoeh-Chahar political council and commander of the 29th Chinese army, to alter his recently yielding attitude.

Refuse to Leave
It was with General Sung that the Japanese military command Monday made an agreement to end the two-week crisis around Peiping, and the first point was withdrawal of the 25th division of General Sung's command, which had been fighting the Japanese intermittently since July 7.

This division began evacuation of Peiping Thursday, but today Japanese officers said only a few battalions actually had left the Peiping region while the remainder were actually strengthening their positions west and southwest of the city. Some units were said to have declared their refusal to leave.

Non-Japanese authorities expressed belief these alarming accounts were circulated in an effort to justify further enlargement of Japan's north China garrison, which has been swelled to about 16,000 by arrivals in the past two weeks.

The recent truce agreement called for both sides to withdraw troops from the recent "front" along the Yungting river west of Peiping, but a tour of the area showed Japanese still holding their positions there.

Bluejacket Kidnaped
Two companies of infantry and machine gunners were solidly dug in on a sand dune near Wanpinghien, scene of the heaviest fighting in the recent clash.

Meanwhile, charges that a Japanese bluejacket had been kidnaped by Chinese brought the widespread tension between China and Japan to China.

Heavily armed detachments of the naval force Japan maintains there swarmed through the Hongkew district, declaring they were searching for the bluejacket who, they said, had been missing since he was known to have become involved in a street quarrel with Chinese.

In Nanking officials of the central government insisted they knew "nothing of any truce" with Japan in north China in spite of Japanese official announcement of the terms of such a pact, said to have

HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE SATURDAY

The story and a half bungalow of John Hunter, 1717 West Ninth street, was destroyed by fire about 3:14 o'clock Saturday morning. Origin of the blaze is undetermined. The loss was estimated by the fire department at about $2,000.

Smoke, hanging low in the neighborhood, attracted neighbors who turned in the alarm. Upon the arrival of the West Sedalia fire companies a line of hose was quickly laid, but before water could be turned upon the flames the fire had gained such headway that the entire interior was burning.

Traffic over highway No. 50 between the west junction of 50 and 65 highways was detoured by the police to protect the fire hose. The highway was blocked for more than an hour.

No one was at home when the fire broke out and a composition roof held the blaze for a considerable time before it broke through.

UNION SERVICES AT THE PARK TONIGHT

The Rev. K. de Freese of Trinity Lutheran church will preach tonight on the question, "What Think Ye of Christ?" at the union service in Liberty Park. An orchestra will play a short prelude before the service, which is sponsored by the Ministerial Alliance, and also the offertory prelude. Mr. Leonard Englund, choir director of Trinity church, will sing an anthem solo.

The service will begin at 8 p. m. at the band shell in the park. In case of rain, the meeting will be in Convention Hall instead.

ROADSIDE SLAYING
AT KINGDOM CITY
BAFFLES OFFICERS*Fingerprints of Dead Man
Do Not Tally With Former Marine

FULTON, Mo., July 24.—A roadside slaying mystery whose puzzling angles still were increasing had Callaway county officials and the state highway patrol at a standstill tonight.

The victim still was not identified after passage of 2 1/2 days since the body, shot five times through the head, was found by the side of highway 40 near Kingdom City.

Failure of two cousins of Cameron Wayne Pebley, former Holt county, Missouri youth, to identify the body tonight was capped by receipt of word from the U. S. Marine Corps headquarters that the fingerprints do not tally with any in their files.

Yesterday relatives of Pebley, who left Holt county eight years ago and was said to be hitch-hiking west after completing a marine corps enlistment, expressed belief he might be the victim, whose clothing bore the initials "C. W. P."

The department of justice also reported it did not have fingerprints of the dead man on file.

Pebley still has not been heard from.

No trace has been found of a 1930 (Chevrolet) roadster bearing New York license plates, in which the slain man and a companion were reported seen in a Kingdom City filling station several hours before a work-bound farmer stumbled on the body Thursday morning.

Coat and Blanket Are Clues
The car and a coat and blanket found near the body are believed by Rochester, N. Y., police to be those of Morris B. Close, missing scoutmaster, but the vague description of the slain man's companion given by N. R. Bullard, Kingdom City filling station operator, does not agree with that of Close.

County Prosecutor T. A. Faucett said today he had sent pieces of all clothing worn by and found near the dead man to Rochester police for a check there.

Both he and state highway patrolmen now incline to the belief Close's automobile was taken from him by the person responsible for the roadside slaying here.

"It is hard to tell what has happened to Close," commented Captain L. E. Eslick of the state patrol.

"From all we could judge the killing near Kingdom City was one of the most cold-blooded Missouri has ever had."

"The man apparently was shot to"

JACK VAN DYNE
HOME FROM ABROAD

Jack Van Dyne, 15 year old son of Mrs. Clifford Van Dyne, 1321 West Broadway, returned home Saturday morning from a three months trip abroad. His grandmother, Mrs. John Rudd Van Dyne, Sr., with whom he made the trip, will arrive by automobile Monday, accompanied by his son, Richard Van Dyne and wife, who met them at the boat. Mr. and Mrs. Van Dyne had previously been sojourning at Ocean City, N. J. Mr. Van Dyne's mother, Mrs. Tom Faxon, Kansas City, is here during her daughter's absence.

Jack had a wonderful trip, but so anxious was he to return home that he hurried from the boat to the train, having just one half hour's time, and made the trip by train, rather than wait for the slower traveling by automobile.

Jack had the pleasure, while abroad of attending King Christian's jubilee celebration at Copenhagen, Denmark, which was attended by royalty from all parts of Europe. In Germany, at Weisbaden, he saw Hitler, whom he said passed in a car surrounded by armed guards, with many cars of guards following.

He enjoyed a Scandinavian cruise, visited Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Poland, Danzig, England, France, Belgium, Holland, took a trip through Germany down the Rhine, and was in Ireland.

This morning Jack, who had a wonderful trip, with many adventures which he appreciated to the fullest extent, was happy to be back in Sedalia, and he ran the mower over the lawn of his home as he talked to relatives and friends of the many interesting persons and places he had seen.

CLAMOR GROWS
FOR ADJOURNING
OF U. S. CONGRESS*Any Effort To Push Through Heavy Program Be Opposed*MEASURES URGED BY PRESIDENT IMPEND*Many Anxious To Pass
Revised Court Bill and Hurry Home

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A rush for adjournment seemed today to threaten the five point program that President Roosevelt has laid out for this session of congress.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, new Democratic leader, travelled down the Potomac with President Roosevelt to figure out with him what might be salvaged from the presidential program. His return to Washington will bring new thoughts on the subject.

As it stood however, the clamor was rising for adjournment as soon as the greatly modified court reform bill has been passed. Republicans spoke strongly for such a step. Many important Democrats felt likewise. They spoke of this bill or that one, being put over to the next session.

Representative Woodrum of Virginia, frequently spoken of as a man who talks for the administration in the house, said that any effort to jam through a heavy program now would meet wide opposition; that if a broad group of measures were insisted upon "congress will still be here when the frost is on the pumpkin."

The President has listed as "desirable" for this session bills to fix minimum wages and maximum hours, to reorganize government departments, to provide low cost housing, to plug tax loopholes, and to set up a new farm plan.

Wage and Hour Move
Senator Barkley has said that wage and hour legislation would pass the senate by late Tuesday. The house labor committee is still trying to put such a measure into shape for action on that side of the capitol. Some leaders in the house say they would like to see it go over until next session.

Government reorganization has not been heard of in some time. The joint committee set up to study the presidential proposal will meet Monday or Tuesday to choose a new chairman. That post was vacated by the death of Senator Robinson of Arkansas. Senator Byrnes of South Carolina is spoken of as a likely choice. Not too much enthusiasm has been shown on that proposal from the beginning.

Behind the wage and hour bill on the senate side stands the low cost housing plan. Republicans are arguing, however, that both this and the wage and hour plan will be pushed aside in the rush to adjourn.

The study by a joint committee of methods used in dodging taxes goes ahead next week. Some members already have suggested that the worst spots shown by the investigation might be patched up at this session and the others left for action next year.

Quite a few, among them Speaker Bankhead, have said they were anxious for passage of new farm legislation at this session. Yet, the opposition of senate farm leaders, coupled with the desire of many in the house for a slow-paced study of the measure before committees does not seem to augur precipitate action.

Chairman Smith of the senate agriculture committee has said that he did not expect any such legislation at this session.

To the minds of many such a survey of opinions seemed to indicate that congress would pass a revised court plan and hurry home.

TWO INELIGIBLE FOR COMMISSION

The county court Saturday received word from the state social security commission, Jefferson City, that two names presented for the time, and made the trip by train, rather than wait for the slower traveling by automobile.

Jack had the pleasure, while abroad of attending King Christian's jubilee celebration at Copenhagen, Denmark, which was attended by royalty from all parts of Europe. In Germany, at Weisbaden, he saw Hitler, whom he said passed in a car surrounded by armed guards, with many cars of guards following.

ASSISTANCE TO 300
MORE OF THE AGED

Many of Pettis county's aged people, possibly three hundred, received state old age assistance checks Saturday morning for the first time. The amounts vary from $9 to $30, depending upon the circumstances of the individual. They bring the total number of persons receiving assistance in Pettis county to over one thousand.

The payments were to those who had made application since November and whose applications have been pending in the state office prior to June 22. Additional new names will be added to the pension roll in August, those whose applications have been filed since June 22, and who have been approved.

Those who have been receiving assistance, whose cases have not been reinvestigated, will not receive increases in their grants, but adjustments for this group will be made as quickly as they can be investigated.

Some of the pending cases are people who have left the state and have not returned. Their names will not be added until they come back to Missouri.

Clifford Wood, in charge of the county old age assistance office, now has his office in the old post-office building, general headquarters for the county relief.

SALVADOR TO QUIT LEAGUE OF NATIONS

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, July 24.—The cabinet decided tonight Salvador would resign from the League of Nations.

Three other Central American nations—Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua—gave notice last year of their withdrawal from the league.

Under the league covenant, two years must elapse before the resignation becomes effective.

NEXT CONVENTION TO KANSAS CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 24.—(P)—Miss Earlene White of Washington, D. C., new president of the National Federation of Business and professional Women's clubs, said today the organization's objective during the next two years would be to advance the economic, political and social opportunities of women.

The Federation, which during its week's sessions here decided to fight for equality with men under the law, voted to hold its next biennial convention in 1939 at Kansas City, Mo.

WORK ON PLANS TO SPEED ACTION
IN LOWER COURTS*Judiciary Body of The Senate To Offer
Substitute Bill*SIX POINT PROGRAM
TO BE PRESENTED*Tentative Draft Makes No Mention of The Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(P)—The senate judiciary committee, foregoing its customary weekend holiday, worked on a six-point program today to speed up the action of lower federal courts.

Committee members said they would furnish the rough corners of their legislation Monday, and hand it to the senate late next week as a substitute for the President's original court bill.

Their tentative draft did not even refer to the supreme court. Senate leaders gave up their attempt to reorganize the tribunal when they abandoned the President's bill.

In the house, however, some administration supporters revived proposals for limiting the supreme court's power to declare federal laws unconstitutional.

Asserting that 80 per cent of his colleagues favored his plan, Representative Dies (D. Tex.) suggested a constitutional amendment authorizing congress to reinstate by a two-thirds vote any act invalidated by the court.

A similar proposal was advanced by Representative Beiter (D. N. Y.) with the further stipulation that congress might not over-ride the court's decision until after one election had intervened.

In that way, he argued, since "every candidate for congress would commit himself publicly for or against the courts veto."

Hope To Force Action
Dies' friends said they hoped to force action on the proposed amendment at this session, despite indications from the administration that it had shelved all plans for changing the court's membership or authority.

Such an amendment was expected to gain strong support from the very senators who fought the President's court bill to a standstill.

Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.), a leader in that fight, introduced an amendment almost identical with Beiter's early in the session. Some of the other opponents of the administration's court measure said they would support any plan to reorganize the judiciary by amendment rather than legislation.

Senate leaders said privately they thought such an amendment might be speedily approved at the next session, but predicted the President would not attempt to push it through now.

In drafting their substitute court bill members of the senate judiciary committee stuck close to their verbal agreement with administration chiefs.

The measure would provide for: 1. Direct appeal to the supreme court in any lower court case involving the constitutionality of an act of congress.

2. Intervention of the attorney general in any such case.

3. Assignment of extra judges to over-burdened district courts by the senior circuit judge in each circuit.

4. Recommendations by the attorney general for the appointment of new district judges on a basis of need, not age.

5. Consideration of constitutional questions in lower tribunals by a panel of three judges. Any district judge, acting alone now may issue injunctions forbidding the enforcement of federal laws he deems unconstitutional.

6. Permission to resign on full pay after ten years service for judges of administrative tribunals, such as the court of customs and patent appeals.

A seventh provision will be added Monday by Senator Borah (D. Ida.) It will be designed, he said, to eliminate "widespread abuses" in the reorganization of bankrupt corporations.

MISS DUGAN BE ACTING SECRETARY

The Pettis county relief committee, Mayor Julian H. Bagby, chairman, met in the relief headquarters, the old postoffice building Friday night.

The resignation of E. J. Donnelly, secretary of the committee, was accepted and Miss Roseann Dugan, who is in charge of the county relief, was appointed to act temporarily.

This committee, named to handle the funds collected locally for the relief work, will continue to function after the appointment of the social security commission, both committees having separate duties.

GUNMAN HERO WORSHIP

It was a quick action reversal of usual kidnapping stories when two hostages grabbed their abductors' guns and started shooting. Tindol was slain and Traxler wounded.

The unheroic culmination of what started out to be bandit bravado came with published reports that Traxler was "bitter against the man who shot him." Oil Field Worker Denton who used the gun has his regrets, no doubt, but at least he is alive to tell the story; whereas he might have been the one killed if he had made a false move when the kidnappers were more alert.

Traxler is just another criminal who might have been glorified if he had escaped and accomplished his purpose. It is interesting to speculate on the attitude of the "daring bandits" who held up employees of the Sedalia Bank and Trust Company if one or two of the latter had had an opportunity to exercise some gun play. It would have been the same old story of the cornered criminal begging for mercy.

If modern youth finds admiration in activities of modern criminals and their bravado, Gunman Traxler's recent fiasco contradicts justification of such homage.

GOVERNING A CAR'S SPEED

On the market is a device which has three maximum speeds for an automobile—thirty, forty-five and sixty miles an hour. It is on the dashboard and locks. When a switch is turned to the maximum speed, the car will not go any faster. It is said that the device is not a governor in principle and that it does not interfere with "pick up."

The switch can be locked at any desired maximum speed and the key removed. Persons responsible for fleets of trucks could lock their speed controllers, place the keys in their pockets and be assured that drivers will not push the vehicles as fast as they can go. Owners of passenger cars would be assured that their chauffeurs could not open the throttles to the maximum permitted by the manufacturers. This locked switch can not be "doctored" as governors are said to be.

Why should the operators of trucks or motor cars regularly on the highways not require that safety devices assure that drivers will not move over the highways at much faster speeds? As long as the car has speed in reserve, there is temptation for many drivers to "let her out," giving not a thought to the warning that excessive speed is the cause of most of the automobile accidents.

As long as the maximum speed of a car is what it can do, there will be drivers who will disregard the hazards of excessive speed and flash over the highways to peril of life and limb. The owner who wishes to protect his motor will not use the reserve speed except in case of emergency. Owners in their absence cannot govern the speed of their agents unless they install devices which limit speed.

An empty stomach and a free man's heritage are more to be desired than fatness at the price of an iron collar and the lash of a top-sergeant's whip.

Speaking of security above freedom, something about which the social workers are worrying; freedom is more to be desired. If the individual must have security above all things, then let him rob a bank and go to jail. He'll have plenty of security there.

COUNT 23 FOR WEATHER

Most people will be surprised to learn, on the authority of the Smithsonian Institution, that, if one wants to know what the weather will be, say, this fall, there is basis for a pretty good guess if the weather records for 1914 are consulted. Infallibility isn't claimed for the system, but at least it is simple.

This twenty-three-year weather cycle hypothesis was first made public by Dr. Charles Abbott, secretary of the Smithsonian, when he addressed the National Academy of sciences in 1933. For fifteen years observers for the Smithsonian had been stationed on mountain tops in various parts of the world to measure solar radiation. Thus it was possible to do some figuring on the connection between variations in the sun's heat and weather conditions on this terrestrial ball. The Smithsonian has just issued a detailed account of all these researches, saying modestly and yet with a certain amount of confidence that they constitute what may prove to be one of the most significant advances made up to this time in weather forecasting over long periods.

It appears from all this observation and checking up that there are periodicities in solar radiation, that these periodicities affect the weather and that, curiously enough, the periodicities move in a twenty-three-year cycle. The Smithsonian in its current report on the Abbot theory gives a large number of weather forecasts, based on the cycle hypothesis and the extent of their verification for 1934, and according to this record temperature and precipitation at numerous points throughout the world show many features which approximately duplicate conditions twenty-three years before.

HOT WEATHER MUSINGS

From Columbia Missourian.

Harvard expedition scientists have discovered the Hopi Indians of Arizona used coal for fuel as early as 1100 A. D. It was known to the Greeks and Romans, the English used it from the Middle Ages, but the United States did not employ coal extensively until well into the last century.

Another study shows Julius Caesar ate ice-cream (Quintus Maximus left a good recipe). Alexander the Great ate it as snow brought from the mountains by slave runners during his campaigns in 333 B. C. Marco Polo found the Chinese enjoying ice cream in 1254.

During the days of the Roman Empire, Pliny's letters described the pleasant steam-heating system in his favorite villa. Some historians say the Romans had electric lights, and legend makes Daedalus the father of the airplane by his flight from Crete to Greece on waxen wings. Truly there must be "nothing new under the sun."

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
Sandy Knight, in the temporary role of a radio announcer of a children's hour program, has been misled by the mail of a lady named Madden. Disgusted and humiliated, he jumps into his car and leaves town. After a scolding from his mother, he returns to his home. He learns that the girl is Marcia Madden whose grandmother perpetrated the radio prank. Then Sandy meets Marcia. He likes both women at once. Marcia is a commercial artist and she dislikes him. Sandy is the head of a new advertising firm. Sandy stays a week at a nearby auto camp and his friendship with Marcia turns to romance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 6

"TOMORROW'S day," Sandy remarked to Marcia suddenly one afternoon. They were standing beside their horses on a high viewpoint of the trail. Without any indication of what his thoughts had been, the man turned speculatively to the girl at his elbow.

"What do you mean, 'tomorrow's day'?" she asked him. "Sounds like a threat in the third act of a melodrama."

"Nothing so disastrous as all that, but it's just as serious," he told her. "And it's just as much of a climax as the third act. You see, I have to go back to Los Angeles tomorrow, and this grand interlude is over. It's time the hero turns to the girl and asks 'Will you?' and then she says 'yes' and the curtain goes down on the happy ending. Is it going to be that way with us, Marcia? Will you? You know I've been leading up to this all week. Because I knew when I first found you down there on the beach that things would be like this with me."

Sandy was standing awkwardly beside her, and as he talked his eyes seemed to devour the adorable sweetness of her. In her olive green jodhpurs and open-necked riding shirt she made a desirable picture. The girl tilted her hair with added brilliance, and made her appear a bewitching sprite.

As Sandy talked, Marcia fought for composure. She stroked the neck of the gray mare she had been riding, and gazed off toward the horizon. Was this strange disturbing feeling a deep-rooted love, or was it just a fleeting emotion—like the fleecy little cloud that caught her eye as it sped across the blue sky, tossed and directed by a compelling wind. As she watched, it gathered momentum and soon it came between her and the sun, temporarily blotting out its brilliance. Then it passed beyond, and again the bright warmth flooded the two standing on the trail. Life without Sandy would just be like she thought—dull and dreary. While if she basked in the love he offered her, she would walk in brightness all of her life. So she must, in the few seconds that elapsed before she turned to him.

Sandy was watching her face intently, trying to analyze her feelings before she could put them into words. But when she faced him squarely, her lovely mouth tremulous and unable to express her thoughts, he read his answer. "Oh, my darling," he said breathlessly. "I knew I loved you. Life together can be so perfect, so gloriously perfect." He drew her close to him and kissed her reverently, gently.

"You dear Sandy," she answered him when she could free herself from those first boyish embraces. "I felt it, too—all along. But I was afraid to trust my own feelings. It was only a week, no, eight days—since we met. Can we be sure? Will we feel the same way next week, and the next, and forever more?"

"Can you doubt it?" he asked her tenderly, putting his finger under her chin and tilting her head till their eyes were in a direct line. "Oh, Marcia—we'll be the happiest two people on God's green earth."

And so Marcia relaxed in his protective arms, and responded generously to the warmth of his love. Their horses wandered off unnoticed, and they sat on a log to discuss the work of this new experience. Sandy leaned back on his elbow and took a long, deep breath.

"This is the beginning of a new play," he mused, then. "—the first act, not the last. And it's a romance."

Washington—Some time ago Roosevelt confided to friends that one ambition he wanted to fulfill while president was a clean-up of the State Department. And during the past month he has been realizing that ambition—with a vengeance.

Result has been a head-on shake-up which has undone all that it has done. In that part of the State Department located in Washington, the clean-up has been effective and to the point. But in that part located outside of Washington—the envoys abroad—the clean-up has put back into the saddle the career clique which had lobbied itself into favor and lush position during the days of Frank B. Kellogg and Calvin Coolidge.

Funny part of it all is that Cordell Hull was a member of Congress during the days when the white-spotted boys soft-soaped their way to the top; and although he may deny it now, he was among the Democratic minority which frowned upon their high-tariff hosannas and their self-

"If it's like all the plays I've ever seen there's sure to be a villain, some misunderstandings, and an assortment of embarrassing and complicated situations. Are you counting on those in OUR little act?" she chided him, humorously and yet half seriously.

"What difference if there are a dozen villains, or a few bad bumps—as long as we know we're due for the happy climax. And they lived happily ever after!" That's the most important line in this instance. He hugged her to him, then got up and began to pace restlessly up and down before her.

"Let's hop in the car and dash down to Mexico now, this minute! I can't waste a minute of you, Marcia. Are you game? Will you be married right away?"

Marcia shook her head exasperatingly. Like most women she wanted time to think and to plan. A wedding, a trousseau, a few friends to share her happiness.

"Silly," she said, rumpling his blonde hair with her very brown hand. "You know we can't do that. There are reasons—"

"Don't tell me there's another man in the background! I'm a serious fellow and I'll shoot him dead!" he warned her with mock ferocity. Marcia was to remember this joking threat in later days, and to shiver as she remembered.

"Well, personally, I wouldn't want to be Mrs. Jail Bird, so let's cancel that part of it," she said. "But let's hurry home and tell Grandma. She'll be so end pleased, although I'm positive she foresees the whole thing. The little trickster."

Sandy stalked off in search of the horses, and returned hot and triumphant a few minutes later leading them over to Marcia. She stood against the tree and was staring at the fallen log where they had been sitting, at the twisted cyprus trees and the wind-swept promontory where they had admitted their mutual love. Like an artist, she was sketching these details in her mind so that they would always be associated with the happiness of this day.

"This must be the top of the world," she remarked, seriously.

"It's just the beginning, my dear," Sandy answered. "From here we go onward and upward, to still greater heights—and greater joy. But first we must go down, and confide in your grandmother. With the man leading, they picked their way down the trail that occurred to them, and the edge of the cliff, and commanded a glorious view of the countryside and the never ending sea.

Once off of the heights, they set particularly high in their profession.

Here are some of the career gentlemen whom he has put back in positions of command:

Franklin Mott Gunther, Harvard '07, was among the career clique promoted by Frank B. Kellogg. Although he had never been to Mexico, he was chief of Kellogg's Mexican Division at the time when the State Department was writing scathing notes to Calles and putting Mexico "on trial before the world."

Finally, to get him out of the Mexican picture, Coolidge stepped in and made him Minister to Egypt. This is considered a most innocuous post where even the most blundering diplomat can do no harm. Then Hoover house-cleaned him out of the service.

When Roosevelt came in, some of Gunther's career friends took pity on him and got him the job of Minister to Ecuador. But Gunther turned up his nose and declined. He has been digging up ruins in Persia until recently when his career friends again staged a come-back and got him appointed Minister to Rumania.

Gunther is extremely wealthy, goes to Scotland every year for the grouse-shooting, hob-nobs only with the social elite, and will know no more about what is going on in Rumania than he does in the U. S. A.

and decided to make diplomacy a career. As such he has been shrewd, ruthless and definitely successful.

He was a member of the State Department Personnel Board during Kellogg's days, and as such participated in getting himself made Minister to Switzerland. In this post he was ardently anti-League of Nations while the isolationist Republicans were in power, and ardently pro-League of Nations when the more internationally minded Democrats were in power.

In fact, at one time he wanted to have himself made American High Commissioner to the League. Roosevelt has now brought Wilson back to Washington to be Assistant Secretary of State.

Leland Harrison, Harvard '07, is affable, fairly able, a staunch Republican economic royalist, and has a profound horror of flies.

When Hoover transferred him from Sweden to be Minister to Uruguay, he sulked, and finally resigned because the milk and the flies were bad in Montevideo. Hoover accepted his resignation with enthusiasm.

Then finding no one rushing forth to use his services, Harrison linked up with his old friend Henry P. Fletcher, recently chairman of the Republican National Committee, then chairman of the Tariff Commission.

And it was not until the advent of the Roosevelt Administration that Leland's career friends took pity on him and put him back on the list of American plenipotentiaries. He is now going to Switzerland to replace Hugh Wilson as Minister.

Joshua Butler Wright made himself famous during the Coolidge-Kellogg days with his hot hat, stick and spats, which appeared punctiliously at the Union Station to meet every visiting dignitary. From this job he got himself promoted to be Minister to Hungary.

Wright is a good soldier, goes where he is ordered, tries to carry out orders, and has been made Ambassador to Cuba in order to carry out Washington's orders regarding the Batista dictatorship.

Hugh Gibson has charm, a winsome personality, and belongs to the old school of diplomacy which believes that there is little to be gained by telling the truth.

He was among the little clique which promoted itself up the ladder during the Kellogg-Coolidge days, getting the lush plum of Ambassador to Belgium.

Roosevelt, who didn't like him at first, pulled him down the ladder—or at least Gibson so considered it—to be Ambassador to Brazil, and Hugh has been maneuvering ever since to get back to Europe. Finally his friend Sumner Welles intervened to restore his old job as Ambassador to Belgium.

William Phillips, Harvard '00, is a loveable but none-too-brilliant character, whom Hoover let go from the career service when Phillips insisted on becoming Ambassador to Rome.

Roosevelt came to his rescue, first making him Under Secretary, then finally fulfilling his life-long ambition by giving him the Rome appointment.

At this post, Phillips has been kind, considerate, but none too well posted as to what is going on in the important capital of Italy.

So the State Department has now hoisted up the career ladder, to be his counselor and listening-post, Ed Reed, a young man who was a novitiate as chief of the Mexican Division and who as Secretary Hull's personal assistant at the Buenos Aires Conference, disappeared in evening clothes for most of a day.

By such gentlemen are the foreign affairs of the United States conducted at a time when the clouds of war darken the world's horizon. A story on the efficient reorganization of that part of the State Department which is in Washington will follow shortly.

What They Say

Jewell Mayes (Commissioner of Agriculture)—The legend, "The People Own Missouri State Fair," may be out of the ordinary routine in discussing independently the institution located just outside the western city limits of Sedalia.

The Missouri State Fair "idea" was a countryman's idea—the idea was developed in the legislature by the Representative from Audrain County, with the idea that it should be located at Mexico, but Sedalia (with the practical help of the Katy and Missouri Pacific Railroads) proved stronger than other competing towns.

The State Fair at Sedalia is one of two or three state fairs located well away from a center of population—and this, on the other hand, helps the State Fair in that it is an annual exposition of the State's resources for country and town folks rather than for city folks!

The whole people own the Missouri State Fair, in theory and in fact. It is true that Sedalia and the two railroads gave the state the original land—but well beyond a million dollars of improvements have been added to the fairgrounds through state appropriations and State Fair earnings, with the result that every taxpayer owns an interest in that great educational institution, and every citizen would do well to look over his property as often as once a year.

The newly issued 1937 premium book of the Missouri State Fair shows the best built program and the finest premium list since depression and drought hampered county and state fairs—it is not too much to declare that the splendid rural exposition at Sedalia is "out of the woods."

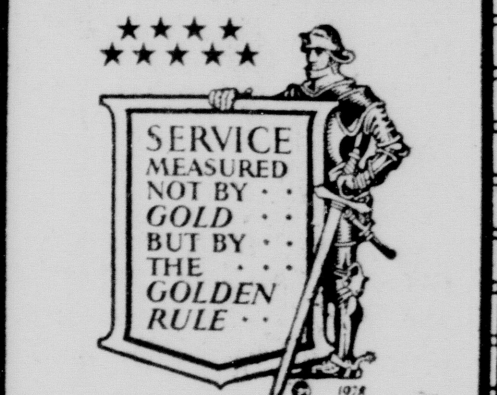

Missourians should attend the State Fair homecoming events, where many persons meet their friends and relatives, as well as to see Missouri's resources displayed in the mighty show-windows of the commonwealth meeting at the people's own State Fair.

Scout Notes

Troop 59 spent last Sunday and Monday at the camp at Lake Tebo. Glen Heckart, our new assistant scoutmaster was in charge. We all went swimming and had a great time fishing. One of the cooks made a cake and baked it in the oven. So this proves that we can do our own cooking.

Scribe Wilson Hopkins.

Troop 59 held its regular meeting at the high school Tuesday night. We discussed signaling, tracking and judging. We have planned a special program for next week's meeting and all members are not only urged but expected to be present. A good time is in store for those who do.

Scribe Wilson Hopkins.

On the new bulletin board in Scout headquarters are many interesting articles, as well as pictures taken by some of the Scout troops here in Sedalia. Scouts are all urged to come and see them, and bring articles and pictures for the bulletin board that they think other Scouts would like to see. The Scout office is open Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons and Saturday morning of each week.

Troop 55

Troop 55 had a called meeting and planned a soft ball game on Monday, July 26. All members of this troop are requested to be present. Prof. C. H. Gooch of Lincoln high school is scoutmaster of this troop.

Vincent A. Bault.

Troop 54 held its regular meeting at the First M. E. church on Thursday. The meeting was led by Kelly Edgington. A hike to Lake Tebo was planned for this Saturday. The boys played "touch," a very popular game in our troop. There were sixteen boys on the hike and all of them had a fine time.—Kelly Edgington, acting scribe.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The following Junior Counsellors enjoyed an overnight at Little House on Wednesday night of last week: Arlene Downs, Henrietta Lamm, Jane Harris, Mary Alice Messerly. They were accompanied by Miss Elizabeth McLaughlin, senior counsellor.

Troop VII, the Forrestry Troop of Whittier school will meet on their regular meeting dates of July 27, and August 3. Then an overnight will be held at Little House which will complete their troop activities until the opening of school. This troop each year declares August a vacation month and all troop activities cease during that time. Miss Ruth Ann Slano is leader and the troop meets at Washington Park.

The Woodland Troop of Horace Mann school will motor to Clarkburg, Mo., on Wednesday, August 4, for an outing at the home of Anna Weinbrenner, who is a member of the troop. The trip has been postponed from July 28 to August 4. All Woodland Scouts take note of change in date. Hour and place of meeting remain the same.

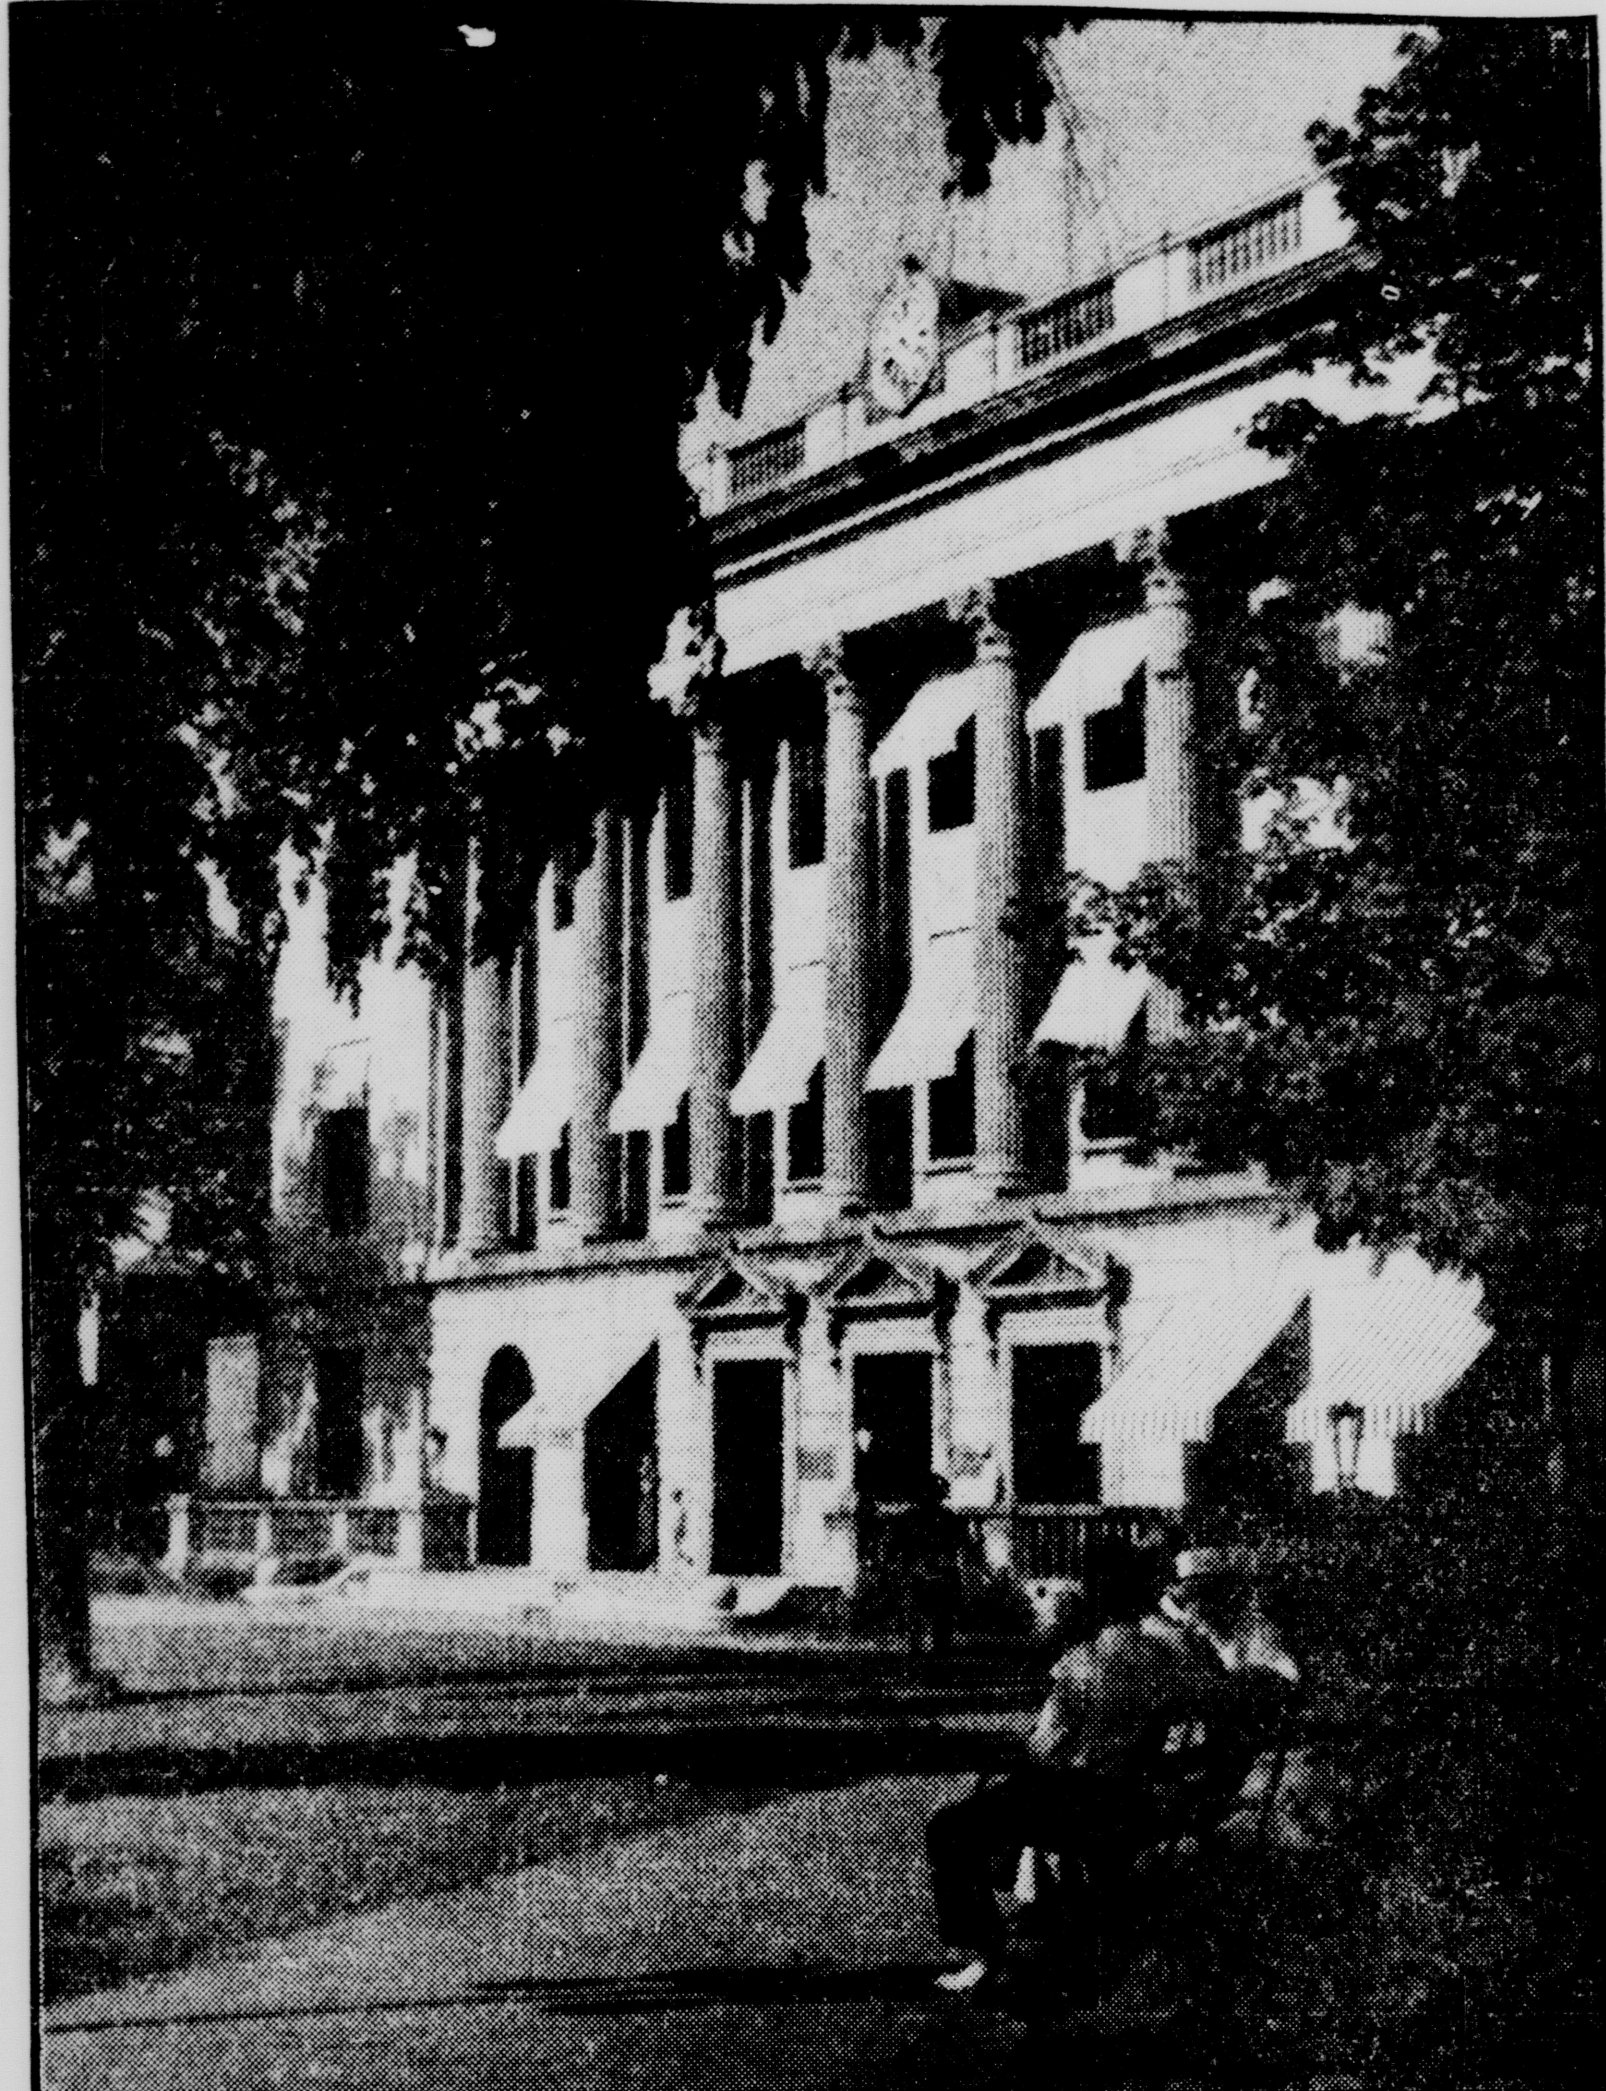

The Arrow Troop of Mark Twain has installed shower bath equipment at Little House which is being enjoyed and much appreciated these warm days.

The members of Arrow Troop are learning to knit purses under the direction of Mrs. A. M. Mower, assistant leader of the troop. The finished purses will be displayed in the Girl Scout booth at the State Fair.

Classes for leaders are being held at 10 a. m. each Tuesday and Thursday at Convention hall. Brownie training is given on Friday morning, the same place and hour. These courses are proving interesting and helpful.

COURT HOUSE IN SUMMER

Camera enthusiasts who attended Friday night's meeting of the Sedalia Photographic Society were given a real treat, and received some worth while information and instruction from a talk given by R. J. Mathes, a representative of W. Shiller and Company of St. Louis. Mr. Mathes, whose home at present is in Sedalia, has owned and operated studios in several different cities. Having been interested in photography for over 25 years, and having kept in touch with all the developments of modern photography during that time, he gave a very interesting talk, later answering questions from the members, concerning their problems in producing better pictures.

The meeting was held at the home of John Joe McGrath, and was the regular bi-weekly meeting of the club. Prints were submitted for criticism and judging after regular business had been disposed of, and to the gratification of the officers, a much larger number of prints than usual was in evidence. Trew Hocker, who had suggested the subject of "Summer Scenes," acted as judge, and selected the five winning prints. After picking the winners he analyzed the remaining prints, explaining why each was rejected, and making suggestions whereby they might have been improved. Members who have submitted prints at each of the showings have benefited considerably from criticisms given by Mr. Hocker, and as a result, better pictures are being shown each time.

ed) hiked to the water works at 5:00 a. m. Thursday for an all day outing. A day of games and picnicking was closed with a hike to the Little House where plans were laid for a trip to the Greer homestead next week and a motor trip to Bagwell dam in the near future.

Mrs. Jackson, a member of the Tawawa troop committee, also supervisor of their Little House, will chaperon a group of Tawawa Girl Scouts to St. Louis soon for a visit to the Zoo.

A report will be made next week of the ice cream social given by Troop Tawawa on the lawn of their Little House Saturday evening, July 24.

Miss Zepher Lane has presented the troop with a croquet set. This gift is greatly appreciated.—Laveada Bogges, scribe.

The Sedalia Girl Scouts are very appreciative of a very good bat presented to them by the Wheaties Company through the courtesy of the Wheaties representative, Mr. Davis. The girls plan to play soft ball at the Little House.

The ice cream social given by the Girl Scout Council finance committee with the assistance of the remainder of the council and the Girl Scouts was a decided success. One thousand fifty-six people were served. A gross receipt of $120.35 was offset by an expense of $39.80 leaving a net receipt of $80.55. While this was some short of the desired goal of $100.00, the finance committee is well pleased and desires to thank all who in any way helped to put the social over.

Forty-five cakes were donated by the girls and their parents. Members of the finance committee are: Mrs. Tom Yount, chairman, Mrs. W. P. Stanley, Mrs. Joe Reid, and Mrs. E. M. Stafford, Jr.

The ticket sales by troops is as follows: Broadway Troop $36.70, Horace Mann $11.20, Mark Twain $15.30, Star Troop $12.50, High School Troop $6.19 and Whittier Troop $3.30. The Council $1.00 and cash receipts $23.25.

Girls who held high sales records for the social and therefore will have a complimentary trip to the Little House on Monday night are: Lillian Flom and Vera Mae Gross of Broadway Troop, Henrietta Lamm and Betty Jane Oaks of Horace Mann, Mildred Hammers and Mary Beth Kueck of Mark Twain, Betty Collins and Dorothy Jane Church of Star, Betty Reid and Janet Stanley of High School Troop and Naomi Berthoff and Ruth Ann Slane of Whittier Troop.

Books of interest at the Sedalia Public Library include: "Walking With the Great." Why read biographies? "Biography is, or should be, or might be, the yeast, the ferment, of the human spirit, which should stir and rouse it to the highest sense of its own achievement and its own powers. Biography affords endless entertainment. But it affords far more than entertainment. It is the record of life, and life is the one supreme thing that interests us all, because we all have to live it." Garmalief Bratard in "Biography and the human heart."

Promotion at University

Robert L. Davidson, Jr., former Sedalian, graduate of Drury College, at Springfield and the University of Missouri has been promoted to director of extension at the University of Missouri. Davidson has been a member of the extension staff since 1929.

Mrs. Davidson is a sister of Clarence Manker and Mrs. James Atkinson of Sedalia.

CAUTION URGED ON GRAZING FOR STOCK

A few reports have been received by the extension veterinarians of the College of Agriculture that livestock are being poisoned from eating plants that are capable of developing hydrocyanic acid poisoning. J. U. Morris, county extension agent, urged Pettis county farmers to use care in turning livestock into pastures which may contain some of the plants that are dangerous. The most dangerous plants are chokecherry, black cherry, sorghum, cane, kafir, Johnson grass, flax, arrow grass, and velvet grass. Pure sudan grass is not poisonous; however, pure sudan grass is hard to obtain as some of the sorghums may be mixed with it. Then too, sudan grass will cross with sorghum varieties and this undoubtedly takes place where sudan and other sorghum varieties or their hybrids. When these pure strains, or hybrids, are developed the sudan grass grown from the seed may be capable of developing hydrocyanic acid.

The poisoning develops only when the normal growth of the plants has been retarded or stopped by drought, frost, bruising, trampling, wilting, mowing or other causes.

Hydrocyanic acid is volatile and therefore when plants that develop the acid are dried for some time and made into hay they are not poisonous.

Symptoms shown by affected animals are: Stupor, difficult breathing, convulsions and paralysis. It acts very rapidly, frequently killing the animals within a few minutes, although in some cases the animals may live for several hours.

Inasmuch as affected animals die quickly it is very important to administer treatment without delay. Farmers who have reason to suspect their crops may be dangerous when grazed should contact their veterinarian and see if he has the solution for treatment immediately available. A cheap animal can be turned into the field a few days before turning the whole herd on it. Graze only during the day time so the animals can be watched.

MEETING HELD ON PARASITE CONTROL

Purebred ram and parasite control meetings were held on the W. J. Reid farm in the Longwood community and on the Grant Thomas farm in the Beaman community with fifty people attending. A comparison was made as to the type of lamb produced when purebred rams and grade rams were used on the same type of ewe flocks. This comparison showed that the lamb sired by the purebred ram was of a much more desirable mutton type than the one produced by the grade ram. It was brought out that in experiments run by the various experimental stations and results actually obtained by farmers, the value of a purebred ram over the grade ram was an average of $2.11 per ram. This is due to the increased selling price per 100 pounds and the faster gains made by the lamb sired by a purebred ram of good mutton type.

A lamb was posted which showed a fairly heavy infestation of stomach worms and many grub in the head. The stomach worms were found in the fourth stomach of the lamb. Tapeworms, when found, are located in the small intestine. Grub in the head are found in the nasal cavities.

The most effective method of controlling stomach worms is to treat every 28 days throughout the summer grazing period, and in cases where heavy infestation is found, every 14 days during the hot, dry part of the summer. This treatment should be started when the ewes are put on pasture in the spring and continued until a good freeze comes in the fall. A solution prepared from two ounces of bluestone (copper sulphate) crystals and a gallon and a half of rain water will treat approximately 40 mature sheep for stomach worms.

A mature sheep should receive four ounces of this solution for treatment. In treating the older lambs, not over one ounce of the solution should be given to 20 pounds of live weight.

To control tapeworms, one and a half ounces of Black Leaf 40 (nicotine sulphate) should be added to the above solution. They should be treated for tapeworms at least twice during the summer. In preparation for treatment, the sheep should be kept off feed for 10 to 12 hours before treating and kept off feed and water for three to four hours after treatment. This solution should be prepared in an earthen container.

The symptoms found in animals when infected with internal parasites are: Lack of vigor, lambs lag behind rest of flock, diarrhoea, and loss of color in the membranes of the eye.

Grub in the head which are caused by a fly laying a small grub on the nostrils of the sheep can be prevented by the use of pine tar smeared about the nostrils of the sheep.

Several sheep were treated at each of these meetings to show the easiest and most practical methods of treatment.

HAS A HOBBY OF PENCIL COLLECTING

C. N. Farley, 1905 West Ninth street, clerk at the Sedalia postoffice, who has as one of his hobbies collecting pencils advertising business houses, stated Saturday that he now has about four hundred in his collection. They are all kinds and sizes, he states and when patrons of the postoffice step up to buy stamps Mr. Farley never fails to notice a pencil they may be using or carrying. If the pencil happens to be one that would fit in his collection he eyes it enviously.

MAPLEWOOD CLUB IN ALL DAY MEET

The Maplewood Better Homes Club met Tuesday with Mrs. Richard Barrick on Route 5. Mrs. Frank Barrick was assisting hostess. The day was handicraft and 4-H club day. During the morning the club members worked on needlework which included rug crochet, lace tablecloth crochet, knitting and embroidery.

After the luncheon, an interesting meeting was held in which members practiced their skills in parliamentary procedure and answered to roll call with bits of verse or incidents of friendship. A general discussion was held on what is real friendship.

The principal feature of the afternoon's program was a demonstration by the 4-H sewing team. The 4-H club is sponsored by the Maplewood Better Homes Club through its chairman, Mrs. Herman White. Mrs. Henry Lamm, Jr., and Mrs. Walter Rissler are leaders of the club. The team which demonstrated was Kathryn Uffman and Mary Elizabeth Rissler. The demonstration was on the making of hems. Hems made were the slip stitch and the shell hem.

The demonstration was well done, and the garments displayed reflected credit upon both the girls and their leaders. Other members of the club joined the team in singing the club song, accompanied by Mary Elizabeth Rissler on the xylophone. July being the anniversary month

ATHLETICS FACE KANSAS CITIANS THIS AFTERNOON

Locals Will Try for 11th Win of Season in Tilt at Liberty Park

The Sedalia Athletics will try for their eleventh victory of the season this afternoon when they oppose the Kansas City Cash Lumber Co. team at 2 o'clock on the Liberty Park diamond.

Fresh from a 1 to 0 victory over the Jefferson City Tweedies and in the midst of a new winning streak, the A's hope to make the Kansas Cityans their fourth straight victim. Manager Palmer Nichols probably will nominate his star righthander, Bailey, for mound duty, but will have Johnny Thomas ready in the event Bailey, who pitched a two-hit shutout against the Tweedies Thursday night, has not had sufficient rest to take the assignment. The Kansas City team boasts a winning streak of eleven and is rated as one of the outstanding clubs in the West Missouri metropolitan area. Pittman who has figured in most of the Lumbermen's victories is scheduled to pitch for the visitors.

The probable lineups: Kansas City Cash Lumber Co.—Sousley or Sloan, ss; Layton, 2b; Stokley, 3b; Lowden, 1b; J. Lynch, cf; M. Lynch, cf; Freiss, rf; Center, c; and Pittman or Titsworth, p. Sedalia Athletics—Livengood, 1b; Loblauch, 2b; Light, ss; Small, 3b; Case, lf; Brownfield or Barnes, cf; Zey, rf; Summers, c, and Bailey or Thomas, p. "Potts" Evans will umpire.

Seabiscuit Shatters a 23-Year-Old Record in Taking Yonkers Feature

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP)—A 23-year-old record was smashed by the great Seabiscuit today as he streaked to an easy conquest in the $7,500 added Yonkers handicap, closing feature of Empire City's racing season.

The four-year-old former Wheatley stable handcar star from Mrs. C. S. Howard's barn, won his sixth straight stakes triumph by four lengths in the time of 1:44.1-5, which shaved two-fifths of a second off the record set in 1914 by Morrow over the 1 1/16 mile route. Jesting was second, Corinto third.

The victory added $8,225 to Seabiscuit's winnings. He now has won $90,250 this year or almost 14 times what he cost his California owner.

Deal Nears Completion for Yankee Control of the Kansas City Blues

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP)—The New York Yankees all but completed arrangements today whereby they will gain control of their third class A baseball farm—the Kansas City Blues of the American Association.

An agreement was reached whereby the world champions will purchase the club's franchise, players and ball park subject to certain conditions which are expected to be cleared up so they can take over control August 1. No details of the agreement were made public.

The Yankees already own the New York club of the International league and have a working agreement with the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast league in addition to several other minor league clubs of lower classifications.

Cards' President Laughs Off Rumor Frisch Will Join Dethroned Managers

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—(AP)—President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals laughed off rumors that Manager Frankie Frisch would be among the "dethroned major league managers" next spring.

"I have not given it a second's thought," Breadon said today. "I see no reason now why a change should be made."

Relative to Paul Dean, on whom the Cards recently received waivers from all the other major league teams, Breadon said "we will give him another once over" when the team returns to its home lot. Paul has been working out with the Browns.

LONGWOOD BOWL TO ALLISON

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 24.—Wilmer Allison, 32-year-old Texas star, recovered quickly after a bad start in the Longwood singles final today and won permanent possession of the eighth Longwood Bowl by defeating Gil Hunt of Washington, D. C., 2-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-4.

Bearcats vs. Lutman. The Sedalia Athletics will play the Lutman baseball team at 2 o'clock this afternoon on the diamond at Twenty-seventh street and Washington avenue.

Undergoing treatment in a St. Louis hospital for a sciatic ailment, Charlie Grimm, manager of the league-leading Chicago Cubs, hears news of another victory.

BUDGE GIVES U. S. AN EVEN BREAK IN FIRST DAVIS CUP MATCHES

By The Associated Press. WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 24.—The United States and Great Britain, split the first two singles matches of the Davis Cup challenge round today.

Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, main hope of the defending British, soundly whipped Frankie Parker, 21-year-old youngster from Milwaukee, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5, in the opening match but Don Dudge, the "red terror" from Oakland, Calif., tied up the series by subduing young Charles Edgar Hare after a weird first set 15-13, 6-1, 6-2.

This even division, predicted in advance by the experts, left the rivals exactly where they started and America's campaign to regain the cup for the first time since France lifted it at Germantown, Pa., in 1927, no farther advanced than before.

American supporters, however, are counting definitely on picking up the two points still needed in the doubles on Monday and in the final two singles matches Tuesday when today's pairing will be reversed.

Out of the first day's play emerged the conviction of some experts that this challenge round can't be conceded to the United States unless Budge plays better tennis on Tuesday against Austin than he did in the first set against Hare.

Bunny probably would have been two sets up today by the time Don finally got his bearings.

Cards Trample Dodgers, 20-2, in the Season's Most Lopsided Contest

By The Associated Press. BROOKLYN, July 24.—The St. Louis Cardinals knocked the ears off three Brooklyn pitchers and walloped the Dodgers 20 to 2 in the most humiliating defeat of the big league season.

From a Brooklyn standpoint the game was a comedy of errors, the Dodgers committing seven to help the Cardinal cause along, although it needed little help since every member of the Gas House Gang hit safely at least once and drove in at least one run.

Warneke, backed up by Brooklyn fumbling and St. Louis larruping, breezed along to his 11th win of the year, allowing only six hits. Padgett hit a homer for the Cards with two mates aboard in the fifth, and Lavegate belted one with the bases empty in the same frame.

It was only the second time this year that a team had hit the 20-mark in run-scoring.

Schoolboy Rowe Asks Voluntary Retirement

By The Associated Press. DETROIT, July 24.—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe submitted an application for voluntary retirement tonight to Walter O. Briggs, president of the Detroit Tigers.

Club officials said Briggs accepted the application, and that approval of American league President William Harridge and Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis would complete the severance between Rowe and the Tigers for the remainder of the 1937 season.

The schoolboy, nursing a sore arm, will go to his home in Eldorado, Ark., Monday.

Both Manager Mickey Cochrane and Briggs said they believe an operation is the only way to determine whether Rowe ever will pitch again.

A THREE-WAY TIE AT MIDWAY POINT IN CHICAGO OPEN

Sarazen, Geo. Smith and Adams Score 144's for First 36 Holes

By WILLIAM WEEKS. CHICAGO, July 24.—(P)—Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., and George Smith of Chicago, a pair of well-established professionals, and Harry Adams of the younger set, reached the halfway post of Chicago's big money golfing race today running dead and head.

The trio shaped the lead at 144 strokes, but with plenty of danger at their heels in the quest for $3,000 victor's share of the $10,000 purse. One stroke back were Horton Smith, Ky Laffoon and Jim Foulis of Chicago.

National open champion Ralph Guldahl, who suddenly warmed up to a brilliant 71, after taking a 76 yesterday; Harry Cooper, who went to the post favored to win the rich pot, and Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., were only three strokes off the leaders' pace at 147, with the 36-hole stretch run coming up tomorrow.

Adams turned in the prize round of the trio, a sizzling 37-33—70, one under par for the longer number three course.

His round matched the pace-setting 70 scored by Wild Bill Mehlerhorn of Louisville, Ky., yesterday. Mehlerhorn dwindled away to a 79 today to drop into a tie with "Slammin' Sam" Sneed of West Virginia, who improved on his opening 76 with 73.

Picard also kicked in with a 70, the third sub-par round of the tournament, hauling himself into contention with a 148. He had plenty of company, however, with Johnny Revolta of Chicago, Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., Jimmy Hines of Garden City, L. I., Al Espinosa of Portage, O., and Leonard Dodson of Springfield, Mo., at the same figure.

After the two days of sorting out, 57 professionals who scored 154 or better, and 29 amateurs with 159 or lower, were left for the final 36 holes tomorrow.

Gus Moreland, veteran Peoria, Ill., star, remained on top among the amateurs with 149. Two strokes behind him were Dick Price of Wichita, Kas., and Fred Haas, Jr., brilliant youngster from New Orleans. One more stroke behind was Paul Leslie, western amateur champion from Jefferson City, Mo., with 78-37-37—152.

Mildred Babe Didrikson, Texas' great woman athlete, who shot an 86 yesterday, withdrew after going part way today.

CUBS WALLOP GIANTS, 10-5, BOOSTING LEAD TO THREE FULL GAMES

NEW YORK, July 24.—Pitchers came a dime a dozen at the Polo Grounds today, but the Chicago Cubs backed up their ineffective defense with heavier hitting and walloped the Giants 10 to 5 to stretch their National league lead to three full games.

They made it two in a row over the crippled New Yorkers by clubbing out 13 hits to the Giants' 11, and bunching their blows to make runs when they counted.

A pre-game bad streak turned out to be a piece of luck for the Cubs. Hack injured a leg during batting practice and had to be replaced.

DiMaggio Is Discovery of Generation

Some Question for You to Think Over

About Bonesetters—Other Quaint Facts

NEW YORK, July 24.—Some snap judgments: The baseball prize of the generation is Joe DiMaggio.... Flop of the year, Roy (Little Thumb) Weatherly of the Cleveland Indians.... Those Yankees were lucky to sign Holdout Charley the Red Ruffing when they did.... Greyhound will beat Musketone when the two great trotters meet in August.... Nomination for a prize as year's manager who made the most of what he had, Burleigh Grimes of the Dodgers.... Guy with the unluckiest year, Bob Feller (though Charlie Dressen of the Reds is only a length and a half behind him as they come tearing down the stretch).... Year's best recruit pitcher, Lou Fette of the Braves.

Some questions: Do you suppose the Giants will be able to win a game from the Yankees in the world series this fall?.... Who will be beaten by Don Budge in the finals at Forest Hills next month?.... What's the name of the horse that will run second to War Admiral at Saratoga?.... Could the Yankees beat an All-Star National league team in a series of 154 games?.... Who will Pedro Montañez fight first after he wins the lightweight championship from Lou Ambers Sept. 17. How many tickets would you like to have, at $23 each, for the Louis-Farr thing at Yankee stadium Aug. 26?.... Can you name the winner now of the Notre Dame-Minnesota game in the fall?

Offered for your sympathy and consideration: Charley Grimm, a grand guy, suffering so from sciatic miseries in his right leg he had to abandon his team in the heat of a pennant fight.... Mickey Cochrane, who feels that if he could go out and rally his Tigers, they still could catch the Yankees.... Babe Ruth, whose jaws are getting longer and longer every day because he can't at third base by the fielding unpendable, Frey. But Linus played carelessly ball field and was the No. 1 man on the offense.

He touched off the winning three-run rally in the seventh with a homer, and clubbed out a single in the ninth to bring in the final two runs.

Each club sent four pitchers to the wars, and not one of them could do anything in the way of muffling the opposition. The Cubs staked their starter, Parmelee, to a five-run edge in the fifth, and he promptly blew it in the sixth as the Giants tied the score. Davis helped him kick the lead away in this frame, and French finally was called on to stop it. French was later replaced by Bryant but received credit for the win.

Melton opened for the Giants and was tagged for the first five Cub runs in the fifth. He was followed by Coffman, Schumacher and Baker, with Schumacher losing the ball game.

Chisox Slice Another Game Off Yanks' Lead With 6-5 Win in Tenth

CHICAGO, July 24.—The White Sox called on their Yankee jinx, Lee, today and Lefty came through with a 10-inning 6 to 5 victory over the New Yorkers.

Chalking up his fifth victory over murderers' row this season, Lee made it two straight for the Sox get back in there and manage a major league club.... Rabbit Maraville, manager of the Montreals, in second place in the International league, with the Newark only 20 games out in front.... Tommy Farr, whose chin is about to get the same treatment Junior gave grandma's bric a brac.... Glenn Cunningham, who has traveled a distance equivalent to 12 times around the world (300,000 miles) to compete in track meets, and who has nothing to show for it but a record and cal-louses.

Improved opportunities: Tennis now must be rated right along with Wall Street in offering the young man financial chances.... Look back at Tilden, Vines, Perry.... and wait until you see the nice contract Don Budge signs after he dusts 'em off at Forest Hills.

Quaint facts: The elbow dislocation in Bob Feller's arm that x-ray pictures failed to show and specialists couldn't locate was found in 1 minute and 11 seconds by an obscure bonesetter who learned to feel his way around when he was blind as a boy.... Al Schacht was held up by a couple of guys who got the receipts of his day's work in a southwestern city, but what hurt him (he says) more than the monetary loss was the fact that the robbers never had heard of a baseball clown named Al Schacht.... Al says he didn't recognize either of the stickup specialists as American league umpires.

.... Mike Jacobs, with plenty of bucks at stake whenever he promotes a fight, always consults an old-fashioned Farmers' Almanac to get the weather forecast before he sets the date.... Jimmy Adamick, Detroit knockerouter, somehow has missed hearing about a worthy opponent right in his home town, a large dusky gent named Roscoe Toles.

over the Yanks, three straight setbacks for the New Yorkers, and cut the Yankees' American league lead to five games.

Only Gehrig, who accounted for all five Yankee runs with two homers, was able to do any damage to Lee. Gehrig's first blow, his 17th of the year, came with two aboard in the first. His second was clouted out of the lot with a mate on base in the seventh.

Lee bested Gomez in a tight mound duel when Radcliff's signal brought in Walker with the winning run in the tenth. Gomez was tagged for 11 hits by the Sox. The Yanks collected ten off Lee.

ROSENTHALS WIN FIRST IN SERIES WITH SHOPS 12-4

Home Runs by Beucke and H. Satterwhite Feature Clothiers' Attack

The Rosenthal Clothiers went one up on their hot rivals, the Missouri Pacific Boosters, in the play-off for the National Division championship in the City Softball League by pounding out a 12 to 4 victory in the series opener Friday night at Liberty Park.

Home runs by Beucke and H. Satterwhite, the latter's with the bases loaded, featured the 11-hit attack of the Clothiers who moved into a wide lead at the start and were never seriously threatened.

Beucke, speedball pitcher of the Rosenthals, let the shop team down with three hits, one a homer by Light, and ran his string of consecutive scoreless innings against the Boosters to six-inning before he was touched for two unearned runs in the fourth inning.

Hays, Missouri Pacific twirler, who lost a one-hitter to the Rosenthals when they tied up the championship race with a 1-0 victory earlier in the week, failed to hit his stride Friday and was relieved by Wright in the fourth with the bases loaded and the score 4 to 0 against him.

The team will resume hostilities Tuesday night, July 27, in the second game of their best three out of five series.

The Stewart Avenue Marketers, undefeated champions of the American Division who will play the winner of the Rosenthal-Booster series for the city championship, trounced the Sno-Flakes, 10 to 2, in a five-inning exhibition Friday night. Alpert of the Stewarts stopped the Bakers with one hit and struck out 12.

DUKE AND DUCHESS ARE GOING NATIVE

VISITING RELATIVES

Mrs. James Clinton Langley, of the Laverna apartments Salina, Kas., has spent the past week visiting her mother, Mrs. E. Bohon, and Mrs. R. S. Croft, 1802 South Washington avenue, and other relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Langley are moving soon to Denver, Colo., where Mr. Langley is being transferred.

are the uniquely Austrian leather pants, simple shirt, and tyrolean hat. She favors a dirndl, with full blue skirt, red bodice, and thin white blouse, such as thousands of peasant girls wear.

The little touches she is putting in their chateau home near here are things like Austrian linen table cloths, wood carvings and hangings. One of his new activities is cutting grass for hay, and those who should know say Edward is becoming adept with the scythe in the approved Carinthian manner. The Duchess helps him rake it.

He is trying to give up cigaret smoking, and has taken to a short native pipe. He doesn't, however, like Austrian tobacco.

When they make purchases they do as the Austrians do—talk much about prices. On one trip to nearby Villach, while she sat outside in the automobile, he remained inside a stationery store, arguing about quality and costs.

The newlyweds reveal the local simplicity in receiving guests. For example, two boys from the village school in Saak, near Neotsch, called at the Windsor's Chateau to thank them for a box of candy the Duke had sent the school.

The Duke and Duchess chatted amiably with the boys about the native gail valley peasant dress the young visitors were wearing. Also in the Austrian manner has the Duke had new liveries made for the servants. Some now wear white trousers and white jackets, others blue trousers with white jackets, and a third group has white and red uniforms.

In one salient way have the Windsors departed from Austrian custom—their late hours. Eight or nine o'clock is the usual bedtime for most natives hereabouts, but lights often burn at Wasserleoburg Castle until 3 a. m.

RETURNS FROM MUSIC CAMP AT HOLLISTER, MO.

Miss "Happy" Moser Attended By Virtue of Musical Ability

Miss Mildred "Happy" Moser, well known young Sedalia musician, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Moser, returned Saturday morning from Hollister, Mo., where she attended the first session of the Southwestern Music Camp, which closed Friday night with a grand concert in which more than seventy-five students and instructors took part.

The orchestra of forty players, chorus of forty singers, and the ensemble of a dozen pianists playing upon six pianos was an inspiring ending to a six weeks session.

Miss Moser, who graduated last spring from Smith-Cotton high school, was privileged to attend the camp because of her outstanding musical ability. She began the study of the piano at an early age, later taking up the clarinet and saxophone, becoming proficient in both, and was frequently in demand for public concerts and programs, always willingly giving of her time and talent.

According to George Oscar Bowen one of the directors of the camp, this first season was up to the most hopeful expectations. "The fine group of young people and teachers," said Bowen, "who have lived as one large family during the six weeks from June 14 to July 24, have been a joy an inspiration to us who have had most to do with the development of the new project. If there ever was any doubt in our minds concerning the feasibility and the need of such an institution in the southwest, it has all been dispelled during this six weeks. Boys and girls, men and women students, and many, many parents who have visited the camp during our session, are most enthusiastic and voice the opinion that next year will see more than double the number enrolled."

It is the intention of the administrators of the camp to start immediate plans for the 1938 session. With the fine publicity which students and parents will carry to their home towns, the interest will be many times greater. The location of the Southwestern Music Camp is in the center of a section where, within three or four hundred miles, there are great numbers of high school girls and boys who are eligible because of the fine work which is being carried on in the home high schools. The Camp is planned to provide all types of music instruction, including orchestra, band, chorus, class and private instruction on all instruments of the orchestra and band, voice and piano.

AMERICAN WOMEN RECEIVE PLAUDITS

SALZBURG, Austria, July 24.—Three American women stole the show at a brilliant opening of the annual Salzburg festival tonight.

Harriet Henderson—born Henderson in Maringo, Ohio, not so many years ago—won high praise as Marzelline in Beethoven's Tale of Faithful Love, the opera "Fidelio."

And attracting in the cosmopolitan audience were 83-year-old Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President, and the Baltimore-born Duchess of Windsor.

Arturo Toscanini, of course, won the critics' finest adjectives for his conducting of the Vienna Philharmonic orchestra. The praise boiled down to this: "Toscanini is still the maestro."

It was an evening of triumph for the attractive Miss Henderson.

She has been singing in German opera in Praha, Czechoslovakia. "Singing here tonight," she said, "was the finest birthday present I could have had."

Her birthday anniversary was Friday—she wouldn't say which anniversary.

Mrs. Roosevelt, wearing a black lace gown and a diamond necklace and carrying a golden fan, arrived 45 minutes early.

During the intermission, she greeted many of the 205 Americans from 18 states who were present. The Duchess of Windsor, wearing a simple white taffeta gown cut along classic lines, under a shimmering cape with brilliant sequins, arrived with the Duke. Salzburg officials greeted them.

I. S. FERGUSON OF TIPTON DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Well Known Civic Leader Passes Away Saturday Morning

Isaac Shelby Ferguson, one of Tipton's finest citizens, died early Saturday morning at his home on the south edge of Tipton, following a series of heart attacks, from which he had suffered the last months of his life.

Born a short distance from where his death occurred, his life had been spent in Tipton, and had been a life associated with the best in home, church and citizenship.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Ferguson, "Dick," as he was always known, was one of the three Ferguson brothers, Wm. D. C. and I. S., who each contributed much to the town, and left names of honor and esteem. This was mainly through the channel of the Methodist church, which was largely built and supported by their generosity and contributions. Mr. Ferguson had given a life-long loyalty and service to his church which was one of his greatest joys, and he had served through long years in every important capacity the church afforded. Until the past year it was a very rare thing for him to be absent from his place as teacher of the men's class. He was intensely interested in the temperance movement and was one of the first members of the Good Templars organization. He loved the Bible and was always a student and was finally versed in his knowledge of the Bible, to which he added reading that aided him in this study.

Mr. Ferguson had served in many ways in his town, as a member of the board of education, of the city council, of the county court, and always with high Christian standards, with friendly counsel, and neighborly kindness, that gave him the respect not only of his own people, but of all denominations—and all classes of citizens.

Mr. Ferguson and Miss Belle V. Key were married in 1884—and went to housekeeping in the home where he passed away, and which has always been a center of pleasing hospitality. Three years ago the golden wedding was celebrated most happily. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson were the parents of four children—all grown and left to comfort the mother. C. M. Ferguson, manager of the Farmers' Elevator at Tipton; Carl Ferguson, of north of town; E. L. Ferguson, of Sedalia; Mrs. Charles Walch of Springfield, Mo.; six grandchildren, Mrs. A. B. Crider of St. Louis; Miss Ruth Ferguson of Tipton; Mary Ann, Charlotte and Patty Lou Walch of Springfield; Charles Edwin Ferguson of Sedalia, and a great granddaughter, Carol Ann Crider.

Mr. Ferguson would have reached his 78th birthday on October 25th. He was a farmer, diligent and prosperous and loved his home and his work supremely.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Methodist church with the pastor, the Rev. William McNeill, officiating.

Pallbearers will be William Conn, C. D. Henry, A. R. Shogress, Ed Chapman, George Newkirk and J. O. Groves.

to attract miners from meetings.

A five-week-old C. I. O. sit-down strike at Robeson Rochester Corporation, Rochester, N. Y., was settled with an agreement providing for a National Labor Relations Board election to determine a collective bargaining agent for the 200 employees.

A statement by the federal government showed no interest in the protection of strikers against "flagrant" violations of the rights drawn from denials from senators supporting and opposing administration policies.

After four men were hauled from their trucks and beaten in struggles with strikers, non-striking truck drivers of the Supple-Wills-Jones Milk Company, Philadelphia, used their wives as guards. The women followed trucks in family cars to call aid in the event of disorder.

The United Mine Workers called off a strike today in one of Southwestern Pennsylvania's largest "captive" mines, leading to reports it will end strikes in all steel-company owned pits—except those of the Republic Steel Corporation.

More than 10,000 miners who work in mines of the Republic, Bethlehem, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube corporations have been idle for more than a month.

They were called out by John L. Lewis, the miners' president and CIO chieftain, in support of the CIO-sponsored steel strike in the mills of the three concerns.

At Tacoma, Wash., thousands of prospective customers milled in front of Tacoma's 10 strike-closed department stores today with only strolling pickets to welcome them.

The pickets, representatives of the International Protective Association of Retail Clerks, carried banners demanding a "decent standard of American living" and said they had walked out in an attempt to better $15 and $20 weekly minimums guaranteed men and women clerks under an agreement which expired June 1.

The temperature dropped well into the 70s at Jefferson City after brief showers late in the day. Light rain fell at both St. Louis and Kansas City. The temperature here fell from 88 degrees at 7 p. m. to 70 at 9 p. m. Springfield and Joplin reported slightly cooler weather, but no rain.

death as he lay on the ground asleep.

The victim is 6 feet tall, has brown hair combed straight back with a slight tinge of red, blue eyes, weighs 164 to 175 pounds, and has nearly all his back teeth missing. He wore a blue shirt, a tie with clasp, checked wash pants, clean white socks, and two-piece underwear marked "C. W. P." Near the body were soiled socks, and several feet away a pair of black and tan oxford shoes were placed, neatly.

Over the body was straw, an Indian blanket and a gray palm beach coat with two powder-burned bullet holes. These have been identified by word descriptions as the property of C. W. P., the affable, popular scoutmaster, who disappeared Monday night en route from Albany to Rochester.

Order Systematic Search ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 24.—(P)—Major John A. Warner, superintendent of state police, today ordered a systematic search along the Cherry Valley turnpike for Morris B. Close, 23, missing Rochester scoutmaster, whose coat was found on a slain man near Kingdom City, Mo.

Searchers were working on the theory that Close, who vanished while driving home from Albany Monday night, was robbed of his automobile and clothing and possibly slain.

The man, whose body was found in Missouri, was tentatively identified as Cameron Wayne Pedley of Oregon, Mo., a former U. S. marine, but a check of the dead man's fingerprints in Washington showed they did not correspond with any in the files of the marine corps.

Opens Parliament Session TOKYO, July 25.—(Sund.)—(P)—Emperor Hirohito today presided over the formal opening of a two weeks special session of parliament in an atmosphere still tense with uncertainties of the North China situation.

The empire's programs of military and economic armament were the principal problems to be dealt with by the session for whose opening the emperor abandoned his summer vacation.

The emperor read a rescript inaugurating the session which began Friday with the organization routine.

Although the brief session was called long before the crisis with China began July 7, it was expected to hear many echoes of the recent clashes on the continent. It was known that Foreign Minister Koki Hirota will make a statement of government policy concerning the crisis and Chinese relations in general Tuesday, when he and other ministers present the government's program to the two houses.

The special session is the first since the general election of April 30, which led to the downfall of the cabinet under General Senjuro Hayashi and brought in the coalition government of Prince Fumimaro Konoye.

The government has prepared 24 bills for presentation in the short session, most important of which are designed to increase government control over nearly all phases of the empire's economic life, including production, foreign trade and finance.

JUST A SPLOCH FROM A LIGHTNING BOLT

FARLEY, Mo., July 24.—(P)—Lightning knocked at the door at the Raymond Porter home last night, but the door was open and Mrs. Porter has a red splotch on her back today to prove the unwelcome visitor came on in.

Her husband says the splotch, about an inch and a half long, is the only visible evidence that the bolt struck. Mrs. Porter, he said, was dazed for a few minutes, but returned to her kitchen work and felt no ill effects today. Her clothes were undamaged.

Supply Road Shelled

Brineta is the tip of the government's south-pointing "thumb." Loss of it endangers the whole salient and the men and munitions Maja's troops have massed inside.

The insurgent supply road north from Navalcarnero to Brineta was heavily shelled and bombed from the air because of reports insurgents have been accumulating large stores of munitions and cannon along it.

Government officers said the bombardments also struck heavy insurgent troops reinforcements moving up from Navalcarnero.

Six government airplanes bombed the Ussera and Villaverde sectors of the siege line south of Madrid.

Six persons were reported killed and 20 wounded in a heavy insurgent air raid on Tortosa, in Eastern Spain.

At Rotterdam in the Netherlands police boarded the Spanish freighter Bauro today when crew members, sympathetic to the Spanish government, mutinied and tried to force the captain and ship's officers, friendly to Franco's cause, to take the ship to a government-held Spanish port.

The police moored a police launch alongside, seized all arms and ammunition on the ship and left five of their number aboard to prevent further disorder.

ONE DEAD AND TWO SHOT IN BATTLE

KANSAS CITY, Kas., July 24.—(P)—A gun battle left one man dead and a policeman and another man gravely wounded here tonight.

The dead man was tentatively identified by his sinking companion as George Squires, of "someplace in Oklahoma." He was killed, witnesses said, by Officer Norbie T. Jones as the two grappled and both fired at close quarters.

Jones' condition was said critical at a hospital where he was taken. The other wounded man told officers his name was Dale Thomas, Thomas Berry or Dale Barry, 26, of Thayer, Mo. He gave the name of Thomas at the hospital.

The shooting started as Patrolmen Jones and John Coyle were leaving a home where they had answered a disturbance call. Witnesses said one of the two men opened fire in the dark and Jones leaped on the man identified as Squires. Thomas then fired, but was shot down by Officer Coyle, the latter said.

Police Captain Stanley Beatty said Thomas confessed from his hospital bed he and his companion held up two drug stores here earlier. He quoted the wounded gunman as saying the pair were starting to take the police car when the officers approached.

SEEKS AID FOR FLIER IMPRISONED

PARIS, July 24.—(P)—Mrs. Harold Dahl of Champaign, Ill., today enlisted the help of the United States embassy for her husband, held in a Spanish insurgent jail.

Dahl, flying a pursuit plane for the Spanish government, was forced to bail out west of Madrid July 12 when his ship was attacked by insurgent aircraft. He was captured after he reached the earth.

Mrs. Dahl said American embassy officials had promised to do their utmost to secure her husband's freedom, although "the United States government vigorously opposed his going to Spain." She and Dahl have been married only six months.

"My husband was fighting for money," she said. "He has no political views."

(Dahl told an interviewer in his jail cell that the Spanish government had promised him $1,500 weekly for his services and that his wife presumably was getting the money in France.)

SIX INDICTED AFTER POLICEMAN SLAIN

EL DORADO, Ark., July 24.—(P)—A special grand jury returned ten indictments against six men late today in connection with the slaying of Policeman J. A. Yocom following a $50 drug store holdup here Wednesday night and subsequent investigation.

A. C. Wheatley, El Dorado taxi driver, first degree murder and robbery.

Hutto, wounded in the gun battle in which Yocom was slain, was charged with the drug store holdup and the killing. So was Wheatley, who drove a taxi in which Hutto attempted to flee the city after the robbery.

Hutto and Carpenter were accused of kidnapping a Texarkana resident last Tuesday night, bringing him to El Dorado and then to Louann where he was freed.

Henry C. Brockmeyer Was Founder of School of Thought In Pioneer Days

Compiled by Historical Society of Missouri, Floyd C. Shoemaker, Secy.

The St. Louis School of Thought, known throughout the U. S. and even in Europe as an outstanding philosophical movement of its day, was started by a man and a book. The man was Henry C. Brockmeyer; the book was Hegel's Larger Logic.

The career of the man was one of frustrated genius; the translation of the book, which formed the heart and core of the movement, was never published.

Brockmeyer came to America from Germany in 1844 on an emigrant ship of sixteen. He had fled the lion hand of Prussian militarism. In the U. S. he early applied himself to accumulating enough money for an education by working successively as a bootblack, a currier and a shoemaker. The money earned, he chafed two years under the restraint of the orthodoxy of Georgetown College and then had attended for two years the more congenial institution of Brown University. After leaving the latter, he plunged into the movement of New England Transcendentalism, then fled to the backwoods of Warren county, Miss., to test its teachings. Here, in the seclusion of an abandoned cabin, he engaged for two years in intensive study to become in end a convert of Hegel. After becoming reconciled to the ways of civilization through Hegel, he quit the life of a recluse to live in St. Louis.

In St. Louis Brockmeyer became the center of an eager group of young men who gathered periodically for informal social and political discussions. Standing before this group in the rough clothing of an iron molder at which business he earned his living, Brockmeyer, says Snider, his dark, penetrating eyes flashing lightning, "made the fettered nomenclature of Hegel dance freely in its fettered chains." Of this circle, he became the recognized leader.

By impressing upon the St. Louis group the practicability of philosophy, Brockmeyer brought into existence a unique school in the U. S., which differed from the Transcendentalism of Concord in being based upon Hegel rather than Kant and in emphasizing society rather than the individual. Brockmeyer, says Harris, "could flash into the question of the moment, the highest insight of philosophy and solve their problems."

The early work of Brockmeyer centered upon his translation of Hegel's Larger Logic, a work which has been characterized as the world's most difficult book. Unfortunately, before the translation could be published, the Civil War intervened with the result that his publication could not be undertaken. This prodigious work, which served as the Bible of the St. Louis group, was intended by them to be their "world stormer." For Brockmeyer, it proved to be his Book of Fate.

Following the close of the Civil War and the return of the philosophical group to civil life, its members organized the St. Louis Philosophical Society with Brockmeyer as president. This organization, by its daring application of the principles of Hegelian philosophy to the pressing problems of an upturned world, drew the special attention of Governor George W. WOODMANSEE IS STILL HELD IN JAIL

H. C. Woodmansee, 32 year old former Sedalian, arrested at his home in Dexter, Mo., following his indictment by a grand jury at Charleston, Mo., on a murder charge, is being held in jail at New Madrid in default of $5500 bond. J. D. Peterson, 51, of St. Louis, charged jointly with Woodmansee in connection with the death of O'Kelley Turner, 26, of Portageville ten days ago, is being held in the jail at Charleston.

Their trials will be held at the October term of criminal court at Charleston, Mississippi county.

According to a dispatch from Charleston, Turner, left Portageville, believed to be going to Fulton, Ky., Thursday, July 15. Early the next morning he was picked up five miles east of Charleston on the highway 60. Taken to Cairo, Ill., he died a few hours later.

Officers said Peterson and Woodmansee were suspected after two men with a similar description were reorted to have met Turner by accident at a Sikeston tavern early the night of the incident. They allegedly took Turner to Charleston where all were said to have been drinking. Turner was seen at a cafe at Charleston. The officers said they established two men later picked him up again, leaving in a gunmetal colored automobile.

Turner's death was attributed to a blow on the head. The investigators said Turner was thrown from the car, landing on the highway and prosecuting attorney Jim Haw, of Charleston said he was run over with an automobile while lying on the highway.

Woodmansee is married and has three children.

TO SEEK AID FOR A STATE BUILDING

JEFFERSON CITY, July 24.—A Washington-bound delegation will leave here tomorrow morning to present Missouri's case for federal aid on its new state office building before the public works administration.

In the party will be Forrest Smith state auditor; R. W. Winn, state treasurer; and Charles A. Haskins, architect for the bi-partisan advisory board.

The state is asking $777,000 in federal funds to supplement a $500,000 legislative appropriation for the office building and grounds.

Word has been received through Rep. John J. Cochran that PWA officials have ruled the project cannot be considered because of an act of congress effective June 29 shutting off new projects after that date.

The state's position, Smith said, is that the project is not new but an amendment to previous grants for social security purposes in connection with rebuilding of various state institutions, and also that its submission formally was approved on June 29.

The new building will house several state agencies cooperation in the federal social security program, Smith said.

God Prepares a People

"Brass Tacks" on the Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text.

Deuteronomy 7:6—"The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a people for his own possession."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 25 is Exodus 11:4-2:26, especially 12:21-28, the Golden Text being Deuteronomy 7:6 "The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a people for his own possession.")

GOD HAD a great mission for his people Israel to perform for him and for all the world as his chosen channel through which to bring into the world a Redeemer whose salvation was to bless all the nations of the world. This required long years of preparation along various lines.

Prepared by Suffering

The nation's preparation included the discipline of suffering. As Joseph's hardships in Egypt doubtless made of him a stronger and better man than he could have made of himself under the pampering care of his father, so his nation must be tried in the furnace of persecution during the four centuries of their bondage in Egypt. During these years of trial God no more forgot his ancient people Israel than he has forgotten or overlooked their wrongs today. Always "behind the dim unknown, standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own." During all those years "God heard their groaning, and God remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob, and God looked upon the children of Israel, and God had respect unto them."

Prepared by Sacrifice

In the fullness of time, under the leadership of his servant Moses God revealed his plan for the nation's redemption. His hand fell heavily in judgment upon Pharaoh and the Egyptian people in ten terrific plagues before Pharaoh yielded to the insistent demand of Moses and Aaron, "Let my people go." The last and most terrible of these plagues brought death to

PARASITE IS CAUSE OF SCABIES

On June 20, 250 years ago, an Italian named Cosimo Bonomo discovered that the cause of the common itchy eruption of the skin was due to a small spiderlike insect, the parasite of scabies. This discovery was of an importance far transcending its intrinsic value, because for the first time it was proved that a human disease was due to entrance into the body of something from the external world. The ideas that were prevalent at that time were that disease was due to changes in the chemistry of the blood or to the dislocation of the theoretical four humours of the body. That an insect, or plant, or poison from outside could enter into the body and make changes was, curiously enough, never given serious consideration. And, indeed, it was not until much later—in 1844—that Bonomo's idea gained any wide popularity.

Demonstrates to Professor

This was when Renucci, a medical student in Paris, showed the great professor of skin diseases there what he had learned from the old market women in his native Corsica. Renucci remembered seeing these old women pick the itchy places on their fingers with a needle until they extracted a small, wriggling insect, and when he saw the same disease in the clinic, he demonstrated to the professor that it was a scabies insect which caused the eruption.

Scabies, or the itch, is supposed to be a disease of filth and poverty, but its frequently appears among those who are known as the upper classes. It occurs most frequently in the thin skin between the fingers, although it may appear on any part of the body. I have known of cases that were treated for all manner of internal disorders for many weeks before the actual nature of the eruption was recognized. It was thought that because the patient was a member of the well-to-do classes in high society that it was impossible for the itch to attack him. The application of sulphur ointment in a few days ended not only the annoying itching and the eruption, but also the idea that it was due to allergy, or hypersensitiveness, or eczema.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

In answer to a question, Palum is a delicious cereal for infants in the summer time. It consists of wheatmeal, oatmeal, cornmeal, wheat embryo, beef bone, brewer's yeast, alfalfa leaf, iron, salt, and supplies vitamins B, E, and G, and calcium and phosphorus, iron, copper and other minerals. By adding water, cream or milk at any temperature, it is ready to serve.

KINKED ARTERIES

Displaced vertebrae, which chiropractors contend is the cause of most disease, does more than interfere with the nerve supply, it also interferes with the blood supply. In the neck this condition is most pronounced because the displaced vertebrae puts a kink in one of the arteries which supply the head, including the eyes, ears and brain. This artery passes up within the bones of the spine and the kink in the blood supply. Dr. Roy M. Keller can best illustrate this condition.

way. Imagine a pile of seven boards on a pivot. Close to both ends there is a hole bored through all the boards. Now imagine a soft rubber hose passing through these holes and you will see that if one of these boards is moved forward on one side it would move backward on the opposite side and put a kink in the hose running through the holes on both sides and would decrease the fluid passing through.

The displaced vertebrae in the neck in many cases produce a similar condition and deprive tissues of the head and brain with a normal blood supply. Lack of blood means poorly nourished tissues which become diseased. Correction of the displaced vertebrae therefore is the ONLY way to restore normal nerve and blood supply which is absolutely necessary for the restoration of health. Dizziness, head noises, eye troubles and the majority of trouble in the head area can be caused by such conditions. A chiropractor is skilled in locating and correcting the cause of such troubles.

EXCERPTS FROM ADDRESSES BEFORE THE KIWANIANS

Report On International Convention Presented By I. H. Reed

Excerpts from three principal addresses delivered at the 21st annual convention of Kiwanis International at Indianapolis were given by I. H. Reed in his report before the Sedalia Kiwanis club Thursday noon at Hotel Bothwell.

The first of these excerpts was from an address by the Rev. C. Oscar Johnson, pastor of the Third Baptist church of St. Louis. His topic was "The Kiwanis Building."

He described the Kiwanis building, located at the corner of Fellowship and Service streets and erected on the solid foundation of faith. He used the Kiwanis motto "We Build" as his text. Kiwanis is not a substitute for the church and there is nothing in its program designed to supplant the church. Rather it is an avenue through which the ideals of the church and the message of the church's founder may be carried to the hearts of men with influence and power in the community. Faith in our fellowmen is an important factor in the permanency of any building or of any civilization. Upon this foundation, he said, Kiwanis has built successive stories which he labeled goodness, knowledge, self-control, steadfastness, Godliness and the spirit of brotherhood. The top story of the Kiwanis building, he said, is love. It is for the love of mankind that we spend one day each week together.

What Price Workers

The address, "What Price Willing Workers?" by Whiting Williams, industrial consultant of Cleveland, Ohio, was most interesting. Mr. Williams is an industrial investigator, writer and consultant, who has worked in steel plants of America and Europe during the past 20 years in order to understand the thoughts of workers. He said that the country's labor troubles will not end until closer contact has been reestablished between its job-givers and job-takers. No third party machinery, no laws, no formula or other method of compulsion will ever take the place of cooperation based on contact and understanding, he said. The greatest price of willing workers is a greater effort to understand what makes the worker's wheels go round. The closer you get to the worker the more you find out that, like all the rest of us, he is interested not in big, perplexing, mysterious class issues, but instead is seeking as an individual the maximum satisfaction of his daily job.

International Friendship

The address, "International Friendship" by Colonel R. L. Calder of Montreal was very fine. As a means of advancing still further the friendly relations between Canada and the United States and to promote world peace, Kiwanis International has developed a plan for erection of a boundary tablet of standard design at all points of crossing along the significant unfortified border between the two countries. The wording on these tablets is "This unfortified boundary line between the Dominion of Canada and the United States of America should quicken the remembrance of the more than a century-old friendship between these countries as a lesson of peace to all nations." Three of these tablets have now been erected. In this connection one of the West Canadian Kiwanians picked up a piece of bronze from the White House lawn while in the United States attending the 1936 convention. To this was added gold panned from the Alberta river, zinc from one of the Saskatchewan mines, copper from the Manitoba mines and free silver from West Ontario. The material was molded together and fashioned into a realistic model of a bison, which was mounted on a highly polished slab of Manitoba marble and presented to the Capital District of Kiwanis at Washington, D. C., as a token of good will and peace between the organizations and the nations.

The closing session of the convention was held July 24 at which time the new International President, F. Trafford Taylor of St. Bonifac, Manitoba, Canada, was presented. He is the first Canadian to hold this office in 15 years. The other officers and members of the board of trustees were announced which included Dr. Charles B. Holman of St. Louis as a member of the board of trustees. H. G. Hatfield was reelected treasurer by acclamation. San Francisco was announced as the choice of the board of trustees as the place for the 22nd annual international convention in June, 1938.

Other reports were made by club President C. L. Hanley, J. T. Alexander and T. H. Yount, who also attended the convention.

YOUTH DAMAGES ARMY AIRPLANE

CLEVELAND, July 24.—(P)—Army flyers surveyed two wrecked planes today and wondered what to do with Julius Balmut, 16, who police said was responsible for the $10,000 to $15,000 damage.

Balmut was in the county jail. The youth wrecked the planes, police said, when he attempted to "borrow" one of them and take off for Washington to tell Secretary of War Woodring of "an airplane wing which can be expanded or contracted for different conditions of flying." Balmut said he had invented such a wing.

"I never had tried to fly before but I've been up in a plane for 40 minutes and I've read and studied a lot," Balmut said. "I was sure I could fly it to Washington and land it there."

Inventions Bring Unemployment But Are Also Creative of New Jobs

By CHARLES E. MARNER NEW YORK, July 24.—(P)—New inventions of the machine age create unemployment—but they also create new jobs.

That was the consensus today of some authorities concerning the national resources committee report to President Roosevelt on "technological trends and national policy."

However, there was disagreement on the extent to which the creation of new jobs overtakes the rate of unemployment.

The committee report, made public by the President July 17, pointed out such inventions are the automatic cotton picker, the electric eye, tray agriculture, and technological advances in established industries foreshadow important economic changes.

The committee suggested the federal government investigate such technological developments and make available to the public information on what the results are likely to be.

Concerning the report, expressed opinions generally agreed public familiarity with new industrial developments was desirable and that the government constituted the best agency for disseminating this information. But there was a wide divergence of belief on whether technology—the application of science to industry—resulted in general unemployment.

Howard Scott, director-in-chief of Technocracy, Inc., which achieved wide publicity in 1932, commented: "The idea is good, so far as it goes, but we consider the report, as a technological document, somewhat behind the times. It is a belated step in the right direction but taken five years too late."

"When an attempt is made to mix politics and technology on the North American continent, there can be only one result—namely, the abortion that will occur as a political government attempts to chisel in on a rendezvous with destiny. The report indicates the show of things to come."

Scott and his associates favor the creation of "the technate of America," a civilization in which money would be abolished and the medium of exchange, as known today, would be replaced by energy certificates allotted to every citizen.

The technocrats do not seek to abolish machines, however. On the contrary, they say they are seeking to aid the development of such a labor saving invention as tray agriculture, the growing of fruits and vegetables on a mass production basis in chemically treated water instead of soil.

Maj. R. R. Lutz, analyst of the national industrial conference board which conducts independent surveys of industry and business, approved of government interests in technological advances—with reservations.

"Much as I disapprove of government in business," said Major Lutz, "I do believe that government, which is society, must provide an agency to advise of business opportunities."

"Technological developments constantly are creating new opportunities as well as limiting and, in isolated cases, destroying former lines of endeavor.

"There is no question but that the invention of new machinery has decreased the number of positions for labor open in industry. Industrial employment is decreasing and will, I think, continue to decrease."

"But remember, at the highest figure, only about 30 per cent of our population is dependent upon industrial wages for livelihood. The other 70 per cent receives its livelihood from other employment."

"Technological inventions are not, for example, decreasing employment in school teaching, medicine, law, the business of selling, and hundreds of other lines of endeavor. They are, on the contrary, increasing opportunities in these lines."

Thomas A. Morgan, president of the Sperry Corporation and chairman of the New York World's Fair aviation advisory committee, viewed technological developments in his industry as an impetus to employment.

"Today in the aircraft industry, skilled labor is so scarce that it has been necessary for a number of aircraft engine and aircraft manufacturing companies to operate their own apprentice schools in the general manufacture and assembly of their products."

"It appears ironical to have a scarcity of labor when so many are unemployed. The real problem is the training of men for skilled trades."

C. P. WERNER GUILTY ON FRAUD CHARGE

KANSAS CITY, July 24.—(P)—Carl P. Werner, former member of the state legislature, was convicted Friday by a federal court jury of using the mails for the sale of forged Omaha municipal bonds. The jury reached a verdict in 30 minutes.

Earlier it had heard Werner deny any connection with the bonds and contradict the testimony of Elmer F. Bagley and H. Frank Ball, who pleaded guilty to similar charges.

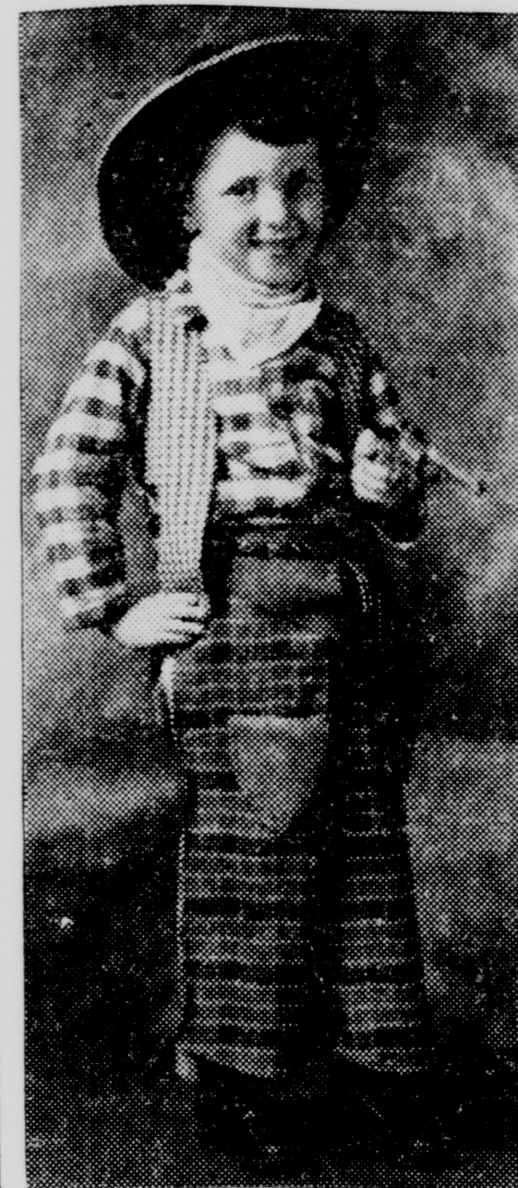

Bagley, former head of a Kansas City brokerage firm, testified Werner had proposed obtaining some "hot" bonds and having Bagley sell them. He testified 15 of the forged $1,000 bonds were purchased for $6,000 and sold through a brokerage firm for about $16,000.

Postal inspectors testified the bogus securities were part of $101,000 worth of the bonds counterfeited by Frank Bedrow, now serving a federal prison sentence.

Before the government rested yesterday, Ball, a former Kansas City policeman, testified he had obtained the bonds at Werner's request.

The defendant, convicted on three counts, will be sentenced August 4 by Federal Judge John C. Collet. A maximum sentence of five years in prison or a fine of

BILLY HARRELL

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harrell, former Sedalians, now of San Bernardino, Calif., who is visiting his aunt, Mrs. E. W. Witt and Mr. Witt, 1020 South Harrison avenue. He is also a nephew of Clarence R. Harrell, desk sergeant at police headquarters. The lad sings cowboy songs at many public entertainments.

$5,000, or both, is possible on each count.

FIVE GUILTY IN SCOTTSBORO CASE

DECATUR, Ala., July 24.—Swift court action in the Scottsboro mass rape case freed four Negroes and left five others under sentences ranging from 20 years imprisonment to death today.

Prosecutors agreed to dismissal of charges against two who were "juveniles" one who was ill and one who was "practically blind" when possemen dragged nine Negroes from a freight train at Paint Rock, Ala., March 25, 1931.

The charges were assault upon two white women mill workers, Ruby Bates and Victoria Price.

Of the five other Negroes, four were under sentence for rape after a series of retrials and one, Ozie Powell, for assault with intent to murder in slaying a deputy sheriff with a knife Jan. 22, 1936.

Twice returned to Alabama by the United States supreme court, the case left the prisoners in this status today.

Clarence Norris, convicted for the third time, death.

Andy Wright, convicted second time, 99 years.

Heywood Patterson, convicted fourth time, 75 years.

Charles Weems, convicted second time, 75 years.

Ozie Powell, convicted once of rape, who pleaded guilty to assault with intent to murder, 20 years. The original accusation against him was dropped.

Freed after 6½ years of jail life and court appearances were the following:

Olen Montgomery, once convicted and sentenced to death.

Willie Roberson, once convicted and sentenced to death.

Eugene Williams, once convicted and sentenced to death.

Roy Wright, whose first trial ended in a jury disagreement.

It was predicted by a high source the defense "will drop the appeals in the Heywood Patterson and Andy Wright cases, and the governor will extend clemency to Clarence Norris."

Prosecution of the case during the six intervening years has cost the state between $50,000 and $75,000, said Attorney General Albert A. Carmichael.

COUPLE INJURED IN BUGGY ACCIDENT

By The Associated Press.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., July 24.—An aged farm couple was brought seriously injured to a Brookfield hospital today after an old fashioned accident—the frightening of two colts by an automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Frazier hitched a team to their buggy because two inches of rain in 24 hours had made dirt roads virtually impassable. When they reached gravel a passing car frightened the animals who went into a ditch with the buggy.

Mrs. Frazier, 70, suffered a fractured collar bone, several broken ribs, and one of her arms was torn from the socket. Frazier, 71, suffered severe internal injuries. The horses were uninjured.

CHRISTEN NEW PLANE OF MATTERN

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 24.—Gov. Alfred christened Jimmy Mattern's new airplane "The Texan" today but the noted aviator still needs department of commerce approval for his projected nonstop flight from California to Russia.

The ship, a stock American model, is ready for the takeoff, about August 1 from San Diego.

With a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour, Mattern hopes to negotiate the 6,400 miles in 40 hours, refueling in flight over Fairbanks, Alaska.

CROWDS AT THE OPENING OF NEW SERVICE STATION

Milton Company's Modern Display Rooms and Offices Attractive

The Home Oil Station moved into a new era of service to its many customers Saturday, July 24 with the formal opening of the new service station by the Milton Oil Company. Hundreds of customers who have patronized this station for service to their automobiles since 1921 drove in to congratulate Walter Dohel, manager since 1926, and to compliment the Milton Oil Company upon the erection of their beautiful new building.

The building, in addition to housing the Home Oil Station, provides office and display room facilities for the Milton Coal and Heating Company and Airtape air-conditioning units of the Milton Oil Company under the management of Albert S. Wright.

Free favors for the ladies and gentlemen and souvenirs for the kiddies were given to the thousands who visited the station on the opening day. Attendants escorted visitors through the new building to explain the completely equipped plant for quick, efficient service to all types of automobiles, while a similar courtesy was extended to those shown through the other units of the building.

Is Strictly Modern

No expense was spared in erecting this building which is a fulfillment of a desire on the part of Harry E. Milton, general manager of the Milton Oil Company, to give to Sedalia the newest and most modern type of service station possible. The building is modern in design, which is the present day trend of architecture, because of its maximum allowance of floor area. This feature proved a pleasant surprise to the visitors.

The architect is Lewis P. Andrews, Jr., and the general contract was let to J. B. Hancock. Other contracts were awarded to the following: Fischer and Son, plumbing; Turner Sheet Metal Works, Carl Schrader, concrete sub-contract; J. B. White and Son, paint; Bryan and Paulus, awnings; Archias Floral Company, landscaping; Wollet Electric Co., and Sedalia Neon Sign Co., electrical and neon sign work, and Keens Forging Works, wrought iron stairway.

Henry M. Fredkin, assistant general manager of The Milton Oil Company announced that Mr. C. M. E. Reeves, vice-president and Mr. A. A. Hodge, manager of wholesale sales, both of St. Louis, and Mr. C. L. Mitchell, division manager of Southern Illinois, were present at the formal opening of the new station. A large number of congratulatory telegrams and flowers were received from most business firms in the city as well as from out-of-town firms.

Mr. Ray Lippard, sales promotion manager, was in charge of the receiving committee at the station during the day and was assisted by Miss Dorothy Suter and Mrs. Melita Heynen.

At the close of the station Saturday night a mid-night supper was given by The Milton Oil Company celebrating this event with Walter Dohel as the honored guest.

Connie by FRANK GODWIN

CONNIE AND JACK HAVE DESCENDED TO THE OCEAN'S FLOOR, SEEKING TO ENTER THE SUNKEN COAST STEAMER TO RECOVER SOME U.S. COAST DEFENSE PLANS. THEY ARE WEARING DR. CHIRONO'S 'ARTIFICIAL GILL' HELMETS, AND AS THEY CLAMBER OVER THE CORAL REEFS, THEY CONVERSE BY MEANS OF TINY SHORT-WAVE RADIOS.

CAREFUL ALONG HERE, CONNIE, THE CORAL IS AWFULLY SHARP IN PLACES.

YOU SAID IT - I JUST STEPPED ON A SHARP PIECE -

THIS IS THE HOLE THAT SUNK THIS SHIP, I GUESS - GEE, IT'S DARK INSIDE THE HULL.

WE BETTER SWITCH ON THE LIGHTS ON OUR HELMETS.

WHAT DO YOU SEE?

THAT'S THE DOOR TO THE CHART ROOM, I THINK - THAT'S WHERE THE COAST DEFENSE PLANS ARE.

PRINCESS, DID YOU KNOW THEY PUT DOWN A COUPLE OF DIVERS FROM THAT OTHER BOAT?

YES, I KNOW - BUT THERE IS NO NEED FOR CONCERN - THEY WILL NOT COME UP -

MEANWHILE - ABOARD THE OTHER BOAT -

I BELIEVE THIS IS THE PLACE, JACK - THIS IS THE CABINET THEY DESCRIBED AS THE PLACE WHERE THE PLANS WERE LEFT - NOW TO GET IT OPEN.

THERE! BY THUNDER, THEY WON'T GET THIS DOOR OPEN.

OUR DIVER HAS JUST COME UP AND HE REPORTS HE LOCKED THEM OTHER TWO IN THE SHIP'S CHART ROOM.

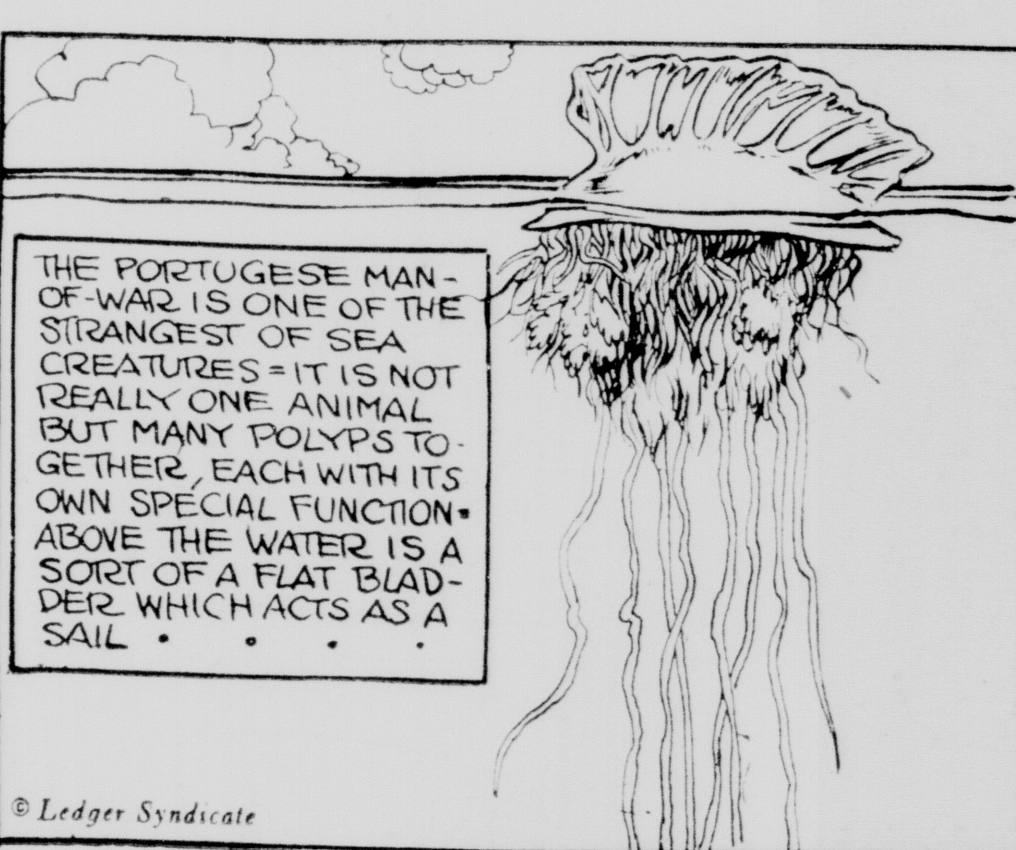

THE FOOL! HE HAS LOCKED THEM IN THE VERY ROOM WHERE THE PAPERS I WANT ARE HIDDEN!

AT THE SAME MOMENT JUST OUTSIDE THE CHART ROOM DOOR.

A LITTLE LATER ON THE DECK OF THE PRINCESS' BOAT.

Utilities Gain in Stocks Deals

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP)—Utilities

ran away with today's brief stock market session, coming to life in large volume for gains of fractions to a point or more.

Fifteen minutes before the close power and light company issues were all over the ticker tape and the majority finished at the best levels of the session.

Spurring the utility section, brokers said, were revived hopes of an early adjustment of congress and lessening of fears further regulatory laws would be demanded for these corporations.

The turnover was the best for any

Saturday since May 1, transfers totaling

505,799 shares. A week ago the aggregate was 243,310. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .6

of a point to 70.1.

Of the 20 liveliest stocks of the day,

11 were in the utility division.

Bonds were quiet and slightly uneven. Commodities were erratic. Cotton futures suffered a further loss of 10 to 20 cents a bale. Wheat at Chicago was up 1/4 cent to down 1/4 cents, a bushel and corn was ahead 1/4 cent to down 1/4 cents. Foreign currencies were about even in terms of the dollar.

J. E. KEMP OFFICIAL FOR D. AND R. G.

J. E. Kemp, a former Pettis county young man, has recently been made assistant superintendent for the Grand Junction division of the Denver and Rio Grande railway, a newly created position.

Mr. Kemp a few days ago with other officials of the D. and R. G., attended a conference at Grand Junction relative to the movement of the immense peach crop in Colorado this year, which it is estimated will top all time records in car-load shipments.

The new assistant superintendent is a graduate of the Sedalia high school leaving here about 30 years ago to engage in railroad work. His advancement will be pleasing news to his friends and acquaintances in the county.

He was born at Dresden and is the son of H. C. Kemp. His father spent 45 years in railroad work, 38 of them being at Dresden and seven at Houstonia where he now resides. He was station agent at the towns mentioned. In January, 1932, he retired from active service.

Another railroad man, who became a high official, A. de Bernaridi, was born at Dresden and he at one time was general superintendent of the Missouri Pacific, and also with the Kansas City and Orient.
